Lebanese factions agree to ceasefire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Premier Rashid Karami went on Beirut radio early Sunday to announce that leaders of battling Christians and Moslems have agreed to a new ceasefire.

Karami said the truce calls for blockades to be lifted around two Palestinian refugee camps and four predominantly Christian towns.

There are at least 25,000 Christians besieged in the seaside towns in southern Lebanon, including Interior Minister Camille Chamoun. Witnesses said "corpses are strewn all over the place."

Police reported 116 persons were known dead and 174 were wounded by midday Saturday but the casualty toll was steadily mounting in Lebanon's ninemonth-old civil war that has claimed more than 9,000 lives. It pits right-wing Christians against leftist Moslems and their Palestinian allies

Karami, a Moslem, said the cease-fire would take effect at 6 a.m. Sunday (11 p.m. EST). The government will guarantee that all roads will remain open, he said, and all sides had agreed to lift their blockades.

These include the Palestinian camps of Tel Zaater and Jisr Basha in Beiruts's suburbs that have been encircled by Christians for two weeks, and the Moslem sieges of the Christian towns of Jiyeh, Naameh, Saadiyat and Damour.

The Palestinian camp of Damieh that was captured by Christians three days ago will be returned to the guerrillas and Moslem militiamen and Palestinians will withdraw from Christian territory that they seized, according to the agreement, Karami said.

Many Lebanese were doubtful that the cease-fire would hold. Dozens of truces have been called, but only 16 were successful for brief periods.

The partial occupation by guerrillas of Damour on Friday sent air force jet fighters on their first antiguerrilla bombing and strafing missions in the conflict.

Chamoun, 76-year-old former president and Lebanon's Christian leader, was trapped with his family in their mansion in Saadiyat, 13 miles south of Beirut.

There were conflicting reports on efforts to evacuate him.

Palestinian spokesmen said guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat sent some of his soldiers to Chamoun's home to protect him. They added that Chamoun refused an offer to evacuate him.

An official of Chamoun's Naional Liberal party denied the guerrilla reports. He said Chamoun and thousands of Christian refugees in the area "are determined to fight to the end for their honor."

He claimed that about 25 guerrillas in two boats tried to land on the beach behind Chamoun's villa under cover of darkness but said they all drowned when their vessels were sunk by Christian defenders.

Simants is convicted of murders

NORTH PLATTE (AP) — Erwin Charles Simants was convicted Saturday of murdering six members of a family in a trial that drew national interest when a judge barred pretrial publication of some details of the case, including a confession.

The Lincoln County District Court jury of seven women and five men announced its verdict after weighing the evidence for a total of four hours Friday night and Saturday morning and sleeping on it overnight.

Judge Hugh Stuart, who insisted on the gag order on newsmen, set sentencing for Jan. 29. Simants could get the death penalty. The judge may pass sentence himself or appoint a panel to do it.

Stuart also polled the jurors for their view of the gag order. Nine jurors said they could not have served impartially had they known in advance that Simants, 30, had confessed to the Oct. 18, 1975, fatal shootings of Henry Kellie and five members of his family, three adults and three children. Two jurors did not reply.

Jury Foreman Richard M. Anderson, a North Platte insurance adjustor, said he could have judged the evidence impartially because in his line of work "I have learned to go on facts rather than hearsay."

Anderson said the jury reached its decision on its third ballot when two jurors agreed to vote guilty on all six counts.

"One of the jurists became quite emotional because she wasn't really sure we were doing the right thing," Anderson said.

Simants, whose ex-wife testified that he developed into a heavy drinker on the death of his son, betrayed no emotion as he heard the verdict. At the time of the murders, he lived with his sister and brother-in-law next door to the Kellies in Sutherland.

Throughout the 12-day trial, Simants' public defender lawyer pictured him as a mentally retarded alcoholic who was psychotic and mentally incompetent. He had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The defense presented five witnesses.

Simants was charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the commission and attempted commission of sexual assault.

The sexual assault charges stemmed from the rape of Florence Kellie, 10, after she had been killed, and the attempted rape of her grandmother, Audrey Marie Kellie, 57, after she had been killed. Under Nebraska law, the rape charge was part of the murder charge.

Cutback of bases considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is considering a new round of military base cutbacks but the final shape of the package is uncertain because of the implications in a presidential election year.

As things stand now, Pentagon officials have drawn up a list of about 165 proposed base reductions, closings and consolidations in the United States and abroad.

If this list were to stand, about 20,000 military and civilian jobs would be affected. Within this total, about 10,000 civilian positions would be eliminated and other personnel would face transfers.

However, administration sources stressed that the numbers are "soft," as they put it, because final decisions have not yet been made at the top levels of the Defense Department and the White House.

There is strong evidence that the base list has been undergoing repeated changes.

It was expected that the base package would be unwrapped in connection with submission of President Ford's fiscal 1977 budget to Congress next week. But now that is in doubt.

Because of the political sensitivity of base cutbacks, the Pentagon guards details of such proposals with almost as much zeal as it screens military secrets from public view. Therefore, defense spokesmen refused all comment on reports of a new round of base reductions.

Congress approves Truman Dam funds

WARSAW — Congress has appropriated $59,950,000 for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' construction of the Harry S. Truman Dam and Reservoir in 1976. These funds will be used to continue existing contracts and for additional contracts to be advertised during the coming year.

These projects will include Stage 4 of the Truman Dam project, the diversion, closure and completion of the embankment and spillway for the new dam on the Osage River.

This stage of construction is expected to take about three years and cost in excess of $10 million.

Also planned for 1976 is advertising for bids on relocating about 68 miles of roadways which will be affected by the innundation of land by the reservoir.

This work will cost an estimated $30 million and will include the following road relocation projects: 6.7 miles of Route T and 19; 7.3 miles of Route 82, including 3.7 miles of St. Clair County road relocations; concrete paving and connecting relocations on Route 7; 4.8 miles in St. Clair County of Route 82, WW and B; 17.3 miles in Benton and Hickory Counties; 6.4 miles in Vernon and Bates Counties and 17.1 miles in Henry County.

Three clearing stages for the project will be advertised, including Benton County next fall, Benton and St. Clair Counties late in 1976 and clearing wind-up in mid-1977. Total cost of these projects is estimated at $7 million to $20 million.

Cemetery relocation work in the South Grand Valley will be advertised in early fall. Most of the remains of six cemeteries are expected to be reinterred in the Englewood Cemetery, Clinton. Involved are 410 grave sites at Dunning Cemetery, near Brownington; 20 from Bear Creek Cemetery, east of Osceola; 11 at Willet Cemetery, about eight miles east of Osceola; 61 from Wisner (McConnell), about six miles southeast of Osceola and three at Pruett, about nine miles northwest of Clinton.

A relatively small stone work project at the Montrose Dam will be advertised in September. Cost of that project is estimated at less than $100,000.

Six different contracts for various public use areas around the lake will be advertised in 1977. Value of that work could run in excess of $10 million.

Several utility relocation contracts are scheduled to be awarded during the coming year. The cities of Clinton, Osceola and Deepwater will also be relocating some of their municipal facilities as part of the Truman Dam project.

The work will just about wrap up major construction on the Harry S. Truman project, according to Col. Richard L. Curl, district engineer for the Corps.

Heave-ho

Andy and Annette Allmon, ages 5 and 7, and Todd Ellenwood, 12 (right), decided Saturday afternoon to leave the driving to Cinder, age 1, the Allmon's Labrador retriever on Monsees Lake on Route 2. Dr. Alan Allmon said Cinder makes a good "mule" although, he said, "she likes to retrieve ducks better." She also likes to chase other dogs, Mrs. Linda Allmon said, even though she is still "hitched up" to the kids' sled. "She can get going pretty fast," Dr. Allmon said, at which point he calls the whole thing off.

Loneliness drives boy to drink

ROME (AP) — Doctors say a 12-year-old boy risks drinking himself to death in a fight against loneliness with what Italians call the "poor people's drug" — wine.

Doctors at nearby Frosinone examined Giancarlo Viglianti, a sad-faced boy, when his case came to light through a letter he wrote at Christmas to "Jesus Baby" — Santa Claus to many Italians.

The boy's letter was addressed to a municipal office in Frosinone where officials had invited schoolchildren to send their letters to Santa Claus.

Doctors said wine had badly deteriorated the boy's liver and threatened to kill him, being too young and weak to stand alcohol.

Viglianti, one of nine children in a poor family in the mountain village Tecchiena wrote in his letter:

"Dear Jesus Baby, you can see everything, also the way I live. Therefore this little letter is to ask you to forgive me for a thing I am doing now too often. I get drunk and return home late at night.

In Ford's view

State of the Union is improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago President Ford told Congress "the state of the Union is not good." He'll report on Monday night that it is better, but the country still has a long way to go.

"I've got bad news," Ford declared last year, as he outlined problems in such areas as energy, employment and the economy.

In the State of the Union 1976, he'll report the same problems persist, most to a lesser degree, and he'll propose a belt-tightening budget of $394 billion.

On foreign affairs, the President will declare the United States is continuing its efforts in 1976 toward a Middle East peace settlement, toward reaching a second phase nuclear arms agreement with the Soviet Union and improving detente with the Russians.

And he may provide an initial indication of his plans for the long awaited reorganization of the nation's intelligence apparatus.

The President is scheduled to deliver the half hour message before a joint session of Congress at 9:00 p.m. est Monday.

In discussing the speech with reporters the other day, Ford said the State of the Union "is better than what I said last year," but he did not elaborate.

White House sources said the President will present a broad overview of domestic and foreign affairs, leaving specific details to his budget, economic, state of the world and other messages to be delivered in the coming weeks.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen also said the address "will present a philosophical overview of the goals and vision of where the President wants to lead the country over the next several years."

Ford met on Saturday with Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa, chairman of the National Governors Conference, to brief him on the state of the union and budget messages.

While they posed for photographers, Ford held a copy of his State of the Union message, saying, "This is the fifth draft and we're going to have one more and that's it."

The President planned to work through the weekend on the speech.

Because it is an election year, Democrats will be watching closely for any political overtones in the State of the Union message.

Some Congressional sources said Ford faces strong opposition from the Democratic controlled Congress for his plan to hold down spending.

The President will say in his message that the economy has to be improved in 1976, that the country must have continued economic growth without inflation, that there must be jobs for everyone who wants to work.

'Swinger' is adopted by youth

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Broadway Joe, a stray dog who lived on meat and seafood until he developed a kidney disorder, has been adopted.

David DeMarco, 13, of Mechanicville is the new master of Joe, who became nationally known several months ago when a veterinarian pegged his rare ailment to too many highprotein handouts.

Is Joe really ready to settle down to family life?

"When we first got Joe, he didn't wag his tail at all," said David. "Now, he's always happy."

What happened was Joe hit the restaurants and shops on Troy's Broadway, getting handouts of steak and shrimp, but he didn't get enough starchy foods and water to balance his diet. One day the residents of Broadway discovered him lying motionless on the sidewalk.

They rushed him to the vet, who made the diagnosis, and ordered a balanced diet. Joe's friends then opened a bank account in his name to take care of the bills.

Joe stayed at a Broadway beauty salon until he recovered. Then, with the cold winter ahead, his friends decided to take him to a kennel until spring.

David, however, became enraptured with the dog, decided to adopt him. He bought the license at City Hall and took Joe home.

Budget could cause power fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Carl Albert foresees continuing confrontations with President Ford in the congressional session starting Monday as Democrats seek job-expanding programs too costly to fit under Ford's ceiling.

"In dealing with the economy we're going to put jobs on the front burner," the House Democratic chief said in an interview.

He listed three bills for early attention in the House. One already has been vetoed by Ford, and Democrats expect at least one other will be vetoed if passed.

The House has scheduled a vote Jan. 27 on a $36.1 billion Labor-Health, Education and Welfare appropriation bill Ford vetoed as "a classic example of ... unchecked spending." A two-thirds vote would be required to override the veto, and Albert said he thinks the chances are good.

A second priority bill is a House-Senate compromise version of a $6.2 billion public works employment bill Democrats say would create or preserve 800,000 jobs. Democratic leaders, conceding they expect a veto, are asking for a large vote.

The third measure is expected to be reported out in February by the House education and Labor Committee. It would authorize $1.2 billion for public service jobs, approximately doubling, to 600,000, the number of such jobs financed.

These are the kinds of bills over which Ford and the Democratic Congress clashed during 1975, and Albert said he expects the disputes to continue and perhaps intensify as the presidential campaign warms up.

"The President will want to attack the economic problems through tax cuts and spending ceilings," he said. "I think the Congress will think that tax cuts and spending programs, particularly for jobs, will still be the basic thrust ....

"The same principle is still in conflict; that is, just how do you approach the economy?"

Albert said economic improvement could be traced in reduced interest rates and some moderation of prices. But, he continued, "jobs have been very slow to react. That's why we think we need to keep an emphasis on jobs ....

"I think we will see in the long pull an effort made to go beyond the scope of the present programs, into the area of trying to reach the goal of the full employment act."

Albert indicated leaders plan to give economic legislation commanding priority in the 1976 session, which will be interrupted by the two national party nominating conventions. It will also be under pressure to adjourn early enough to allow campaigning time.

Additionally, the requirements of the new budget control act, coming fully into effect this year, dictate a tight schedule on bills authorizing spending and making actual appropriations. By May 15 all authorizing legislation is to be out of committees and Congress is to have adopted its target resolution on overall revenues and outlays.

"We are going to have to concentrate on athorizations and appropriations," Albert said. "General things will have to wait."

The speaker indicated a low priority would be assigned to such controversial measures as proposals for anti-abortion constitutional amendments, legislation on gun control and against busing of school children for racial balance.

Ann Landers

New definition for alcoholic

Dear Ann Landers: We like your approach to alcoholism — especially the support you give AA, Al-Anon and Alateen. And now, will you settle an argument for us?

There are several definitions of an alcoholic. Here is one I found in some literature from the National Council on Alcoholism. Please comment:

"It doesn't make any difference whether a person drinks whiskey, gin, champagne, or beer; whether he drinks before breakfast or only after dinner, alone or with others, at home or abroad. If drinking continues to disrupt his life, he is an alcoholic. The opposite is equally valid. If his drinking does NOT cause trouble, even if he drinks before breakfast, he is not an alocholic." — You Decide.

Dear Y.D.: I go along with the definition — up to the last sentence. Some alcoholics manage, miraculously, not to cause trouble — but they are alcoholics nevertheless, because once they take a drink, they cannot control their drinking. THAT is the critical difference between the social drinker and the alcoholic.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is from the 8th-grade girls of Marshall, Arkansas. We want to respond to the woman who said teenage boys act rude and push us girls around because we dress like guys (in faded jeans and hip-huggers). She said when girls look like guys they deserve to be treated like guys.

What about guys who look like girls? There are several in our school whose hair is much longer than most girls'.

We don't wear jeans, overalls, denim shirts, battle jackets and cowboy belts all the time. We also wear dresses and pantsuits. The styles have changed a lot since that woman was in school. Girls are much more active in sports than they used to be. Pants instead of skirts are more practical. Although our jeans may be faded we know that if they have holes in them they are not fit to be worn in public. Thanks for letting us have our say. — The Other Side.

Dear O.S.: O.K. You've had your say, and said it well. The woman who wrote and put down today's teenage girls unleashed an unexpected torrent of angry responses.

Many things have changed these past ten years, including the way teenagers express anger. I've seen a lot of four-letter words this week. Cool it, cats, will ya' please?

Dear Ann Landers: The word is, "If you want millions of people to read it, write to Ann Landers." Please print this letter because what I have to say is important.

I work in a large hospital. Every day we receive hundreds of pieces of mail. Frequently "get-well" cards with cash arrive, addressed to the hospital. This means we must open the envelope. More often than not the information inside is inadequate. The card says, "Dear Mary" — or "Dear Joe".

Tell your readers to address their cards and letters as follows: patient's full name, room number or department (if possible), and a return address would be a big help.

People often wonder why they don't receive a "thank you." Maybe the card with the money was never received. — Frustrated.

Dear Frus: May I tag along? Readers often send stamped envelopes addressed to ME instead of to themselves. And they wonder why they don't get an answer. Thanks a heap.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It — A Guide For Teens And Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Windsor man's condition is good

GREEN RIDGE — A 19-year-old Windsor man was listed in good condition Saturday evening at the University of Missouri Medical Center at Columbia, where he was taken for treatment of injuries sustained in a one-car accident.

According to the Highway Patrol, Robert E. Booyer suffered head injuries when his confertible struck an embankment at the intersection of Routes B and AA at 12:25 a.m. Saturday.

The accident occurred while Booyer was being pursued by the Green Ridge police, the Patrol said. Booyer reportedly lost control of his auto and struck the embankment.

Following examination at Bothwell Hospital, Booyer was transferred to the Columbia hospital for treatment.

Woman dies in fire in home

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. (AP) — A 50-year-old High Ridge, Mo., woman died in a fire here Saturday, according to Fred Pope, assistant Warren County coroner.

He said Ella Mae Oliver and her husband, Alfred, were visiting his parents when they discovered a small fire near an oil heater.

Mrs. Oliver went to the telephone to call for help and a stove near the heater burst into flames, Pope said.

The fire flashed through the house so quickly that Alfred Oliver was unable to rescue his wife. His father and mother, Alfred senior and Rose, have been hospitalized.

Wright City is about 30 miles west of St. Louis on Interstate 70.

Graveside services will be held Tuesday afternoon.

Six killed in wrecks in state

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Within a few minutes early Saturday morning, six people were killed in crashes on Missouri highways and four of them died in one accident.

Four students at Northwest Missouri State University perished when a Volkswagen in which they were riding collided with a tractor-trailer truck just noroh of Maryville.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified them as Wesley Gene Hoppe, Farnham, Neb., the owner of the car; Miss Janet L. Hawk, Des Moines, Iowa; Steven M. Purnell, Glenwood, Iowa, and Thomas E. McAlexander, Council Bluffs, Iowa. All were 19.

Investigators said the Volkswagen, headed east on U.S. 71 near the point where it turns south into Maryville, crossed into the wrong lane and collided almost head-on with the big truck.

Robert D. Lampton, 25, Hardin, Mo., was killed when his pickup truck skidded off Missouri 10, slid down an embankrment and overturned. Lampton's truck left the highway about 1½ miles west of Hardin on the stretch between Richmond and Carrollton.

What am I bid?

About 500 persons attended the annual fur sale in the Hereford Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds Saturday. The sale, sponsored by the Central Missouri Coon Hunters Association, drew 85 sellers and 40 fur buyers from Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Illinois and Indiana. From 17,000 to 20,000 hides were to be sold. Saturday morning, raccoon skins were selling for about $15 each, with one red fox pelt selling for $46. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Fairfax files for re-election

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax late Friday afternoon filed for his fifth term as sheriff.

Fairfax, 45, first took office Jan. 1, 1961, and has served four consecutive four-year terms since then. He will be opposed in the August primary election by Albert M. McAllister, 51, 2801 South Ohio, also a Democrat.

During his 16 years at sheriff, Fairfax spearheaded a bond issue drive that resulted in the closing of the often-condemned old county jail and the construction in 1969 of a modern facility capable of housing 32 prisoners.

Saturday Fairfax said one of the county's leading problems was an increase in crime directly related to drug abuse.

He said he took special pride in his leadership of a campaign in the latter part of 1974 that resulted in the arrest of 22 individuals "who were charged with 32 drug sales." Fairfax requested and received assistance from the Drug Enforcement Administration Task Force in the anti-drug sweep, he said.

Fairfax said one of his primary goals if elected to a fifth term will be a continuation of efforts to curb drug abuse and rural crime.

In 1961 the sheriff's department had only one deputy "in the field." There are now three officers assisting Fairfax, plus several persons who are employed as dispatchers.

Fairfax, in the last three years, has also played an active role in the Law Enforcement Assistance Council, securing financial assistance from that group to be used for law enforcement purposes here, he said.

Fairfax, his wife Alice and their two children live on a farm southeast of Sedalia. One son, Jim, is stationed in California with the Marine Corps.

Soviet-backed forces plan to keep fighting

By THE ASSOCIATED Press

Soviet-backed forces in Angola said Saturday they will reject U.S. proposals for peace and keep fighting until they win, and Fidel Castro said Cuban troops spearheading the onslaught will stay as long as they are wanted.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Popular Movement — MPLA — forces, armed with Soviet tanks, rockets and heavy artillery, continued driving Western-supported National Front — FNLA — troops in panic toward Angola's northern border with Zaire.

The Zaire air force provided covering fire for troops retreating across the frontier, Tass said without elaboration.

Tass said Western propaganda as accused the MPLA of aggression against Zaire, which has threatened to declare war on the MPLA if its territory is violated, "in order to give Zaire a plausible excuse for a possible extension of the war in Angola."

An MPLA spokesman was quoted by the London Daily Telegraph as saying "The war will continue until the enemies of the people are defeated," and that the MPLA will reject U.S. proposals for a coalition government of the warring factions.

The spokesman also said that MPLA forces have been ordered to crush retreating FNLA troops "in one or two weeks."

The newspaper said the FNLA holds only three major towns in Angola's northern third. U.S. sources said the National Front was "near collapse."

Tass said FNLA leader Holden Roberto had fled to Kinshasa, capital of Zaire. The New York Times reported from Kinshasa that Roberto was in the city, but denied the FNLA was collapsing and said he would return to Angola to inspect the situation.

South African sources said the National Union — UNITA — a Western-backed ally of the FNLA in southern Angola reportedly backed by South African troops, has said some 1,000 MPLA and 500 Cuban troops were advancing on the key southern town of Luso.

Willis is granted change of venue

Al Willis, 407 North Summit, was granted a change of venue Friday in Circuit Court to Cooper County. His application claimed he could not get a fair trial in Pettis County because of the "bias and prejudice of its inhabitants."

Willis was arrested by police in late December, 1974, on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was searched and a loaded .38-caliber revolver was allegedly in his possession.

His jury trial is scheduled to begin Thursday. He is free on $2,500 bond.

In other police news, Carl J. Collins, Route 2, reported the theft of his .22-caliber automatic rifle valued at $150 from his pickup truck between 1:15 p.m. and 3:13 p.m. Saturday. He said he parked his truck in back of the Friendly Tavern, 117 West Main, and locked the truck. When he returned, the rifle was gone. A wing vent window was forced open to gain entry, police said.

C. W. Gordy, 408 East Sixth, told police vandals slashed the rear tire of his car, causing about $85 worth of damage. Gordy discovered the slashed tire Saturday morning, he told police.

A car battery and two cables valued at $52 were taken from a car owned by Jim Lockhort, 100 East 11th, between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. Friday. He told police his car was parked at Thompson Hills Shopping Center when the theft occurred.

E. G. Ward, 1108 Harold, reported the theft of a car battery valued at $45. Ward told police the battery was taken from his truck Friday night as it was parked at his home. He discovered the theft the next morning, he told police.

John William Hunnius, Apartment 3, 400 Wilkerson, reported the theft of a tape player, two speakers and a portable television set from his apartment Friday evening. The items were collectively valued at $350.

Hunnius told police he left the apartment for about half an hour Friday evening with a friend and when he returned the items were missing. The apartment was locked and no signs of forcible entry were found, according to police.

Police are investigating a break-in at the First Baptist Church, Sixth and Lamine, which occurred Friday night. Nothing was reported missing.

Police reports indicated entry to the building was gained by breaking a window. Two other windows were also damaged, as was a pop machine inside the church.

Minor injuries after wreck

An Otterville man was treated and released Saturday night at Bothwell Hospital following a one-car accident late Friday night at the intersection of Broadway and Engineer.

Lonnie E. Reaves, 24, was driving west on Broadway when his car drifted to the left and collided with a concrete signal pole in the center of the street. The police report said Reaves was "apparently intoxicated," but no arrests were made.

Many injured in explosion

CUMBERLAND, R.I. (AP) — "When I got to the window, there was no wall left. It just blew me right through," said Norman Brule.

Brule was one of at least 27 persons working in the Peterson-Puritan Aerosol spray plant when an explosion ripped through the building Saturday, tossing chunks of cement 20 feet from the one-story buildring.

Twenty workers were injured, seven critically, authorrities said.

Much of the interior of the building was demolished and two outside walls were knocked flat. Twelve persons were initially trapped under debris but had been evacuated by within 90 minutes of the blast.

"Everybody panicked and ran for windows and open doors, anything to get out," said Brule, who suffered minor injuries. "As far as we know it was a gas explosion.

"I was in the men's room and I was ready to leave when I felt a terrific heat," Brule said. "I looked around and the door was on fire. I tried to get out another way, a window in the back."

Off-duty officer suspended

Sedalia Police Officer Daryl Justis was suspended early Saturday morning by Interim Police Chief Gary Dey for 30 days without pay for allegedly violating the Police Department's personal conduct rule in a "disturbance" around 2:30 a.m. Saturday at Sambo's Restaurant, 2001 South Limit. Dey also recommended his dismissal from the department.

A police department news release said Justis "failed to immediately identify himself as a police officer and to use proper discretion in effecting an arrest." The release said he was off duty at the time.

Assistant Police Chief Charles Knapp said Justis will appear before the Police Advisory Committee composed of a sergeant and two officers in an effort to "solve the problem within the department." Sgt. William Shobe and Officer Douglas McQueen are members of the committee, which is elected by the rest of the officers, Knapp said. He said the third place on the committee was vacant at present.

If the matter cannot be resolved within the department, Knapp said, Justis can appeal his case to the Police Personnel Board, which has final authority.

Knapp declined to say specifically what Justis did Saturday morning that resulted in his suspension. "We're not going to tell until this man has a hearing," Knapp said.

Justis allegedly violated rule nine of the police regulations. The rule says "A member is charged with the duty to conduct himself at all times in keeping with the code of ethics and all activity adverse to this concept, whether or not specifically mentioned or prohibited in these rules and regulations, shall subject a member to appropriate disciplinary action."

The manager of the restaurant, who declined to be identified, said Justis and another man were engaged in an argument. He said the night manager asked them to "carry on their argument outside." Shortly afterwards, police were called, and, the manager said, Justis left with them. Justis was in civilian clothes at the time, the manager said.

Justis was suspended without pay Dec. 25 for five days after being convicted in Municipal Court Dec. 19 of careless and imprudent driving. The conviction stemmed from a traffic accident Oct. 25 at Broadway and Limit.

Question

What is the difference between an estate tax and an inheritance tax?

Answer

An estate tax is an excise tax levied upon the transfer of property at the death of the owner. It is a tax liability of the entire taxable estate. Inheritance tax is also an excise tax levied at death, but it is imposed upon individual beneficiaries rather than the estate as a whole.

The federal government levies only an estate tax. An Internal Revenue Service form 706 must be filed within 9 months for a decedent who has a gross estate valued in excess of $60,000.

Every state except Nevada levies either an estate tax or an inheritance tax or both. These succession taxes apply to all transfers, but exemptions frequently render the transfer tax free.

Paying government bills

By RICHARD LIPEZ

The Phoenix Nest
Edited by Martin Levin

Memorandum
from: Harlow N. Windfall, Under Secretary of the U.S. Treasury to: U.S. Government disbursing offices

You have probably read in the papers that the budget deficit this year will run close to $100 million. And the question naturally arises, how are we going to pay the government's bills?

Let me assure you that the government can and will meet quite a few of its financial obligations. The following steps have already been implemented to insure the availability of ready cash:

1. A second mortgage has been taken out on the White House. David Rockefeller has personally assured me that Chase Manhattan Bank will not foreclose on the mortgage, provided that interest payments are kept up. I'm sure that we can handle that. At any rate, should Chase Manhattan be forced in the best interests of its shareholders to foreclose, we will be able to rent the White House from Chase Manhattan at a reasonable $980,000 a month, not including utilities of course.

2. We have also mortgaged for the first time the Pentagon (it is essential that the House Armed Services Committee not get wind of this), both Senate office buildings, eight national parks and the National Guard.

3. I'm afraid we have had to lease out the air rights over the U.S. Capitol building. The developer who is planning a 37-story office tower above the Capitol has assured us that his building will be more or less esthetically compatible with the existing Capitol structure. And the income from this venture will more than compensate for the grief we'll get from the architectural purists around the country.

4. The Treasury will expand the use of its American Express credit card. Also, I wish at this point to put to rest those rumors that we owe American Express $2 billion, $93 million for last month. This bill was obviously the result of a computer error.

5. We have arranged to borrow another $900 million from the Shah of Iran. The sixth fleet will be used as collateral. Regrettably, the Shah insists on paying us in Iranian Rials. Therefore, American citizens who insist on cashing in their U.S. Government savings bonds this year will be paid in Rials instead of dollars.

I must emphasize that all of these measures are temporary. The president has of course abandoned the notion that the government should be run at a profit, like General Motors. But he still favors a balanced budget whenever we can manage it. Next year we shall do better.

In the meantime, I authorize the payment of all the bills that have piled up. And if you need the American Express card, stop by Secretary Simon's office. He keeps it in his wallet.

Corporations need love, too

By HENRY MORGAN

It's remarkable how many people are in love with the telephone company. Why, simply everybody refers to this wonderful old utility as "Ma Bell." At the very mention of her name, ladies start snuffling into their hankies. Men, too strong to cry, quail instead. Or is it grouse?

Somehow, no matter how much we pour out our affections, all of us seem to have love left over. Big twelve dollar books are written every day to tell us what to do with our extra emotions. Best sellers, such as "I'm a Wonderful Person and You're Another," and "How to Love Yourself Real Good," and "Do Unto Theyself as Thou Would'st Have Others Do You Unto."

The wonder of it is that we haven't yet recognized some of the other corporate structures that are not only available, but sitting there simpering, just waiting for adoration. Like "Ma's" brother-in-law, Western Electric. Couldn't we call it "Unkie?"

There's General Motors, a company that's been dying for affection, probably from as far back as Charlie Wilson. Why don't we just haul it into the good old family circle — "Popsie?"

(In our new, expanded love-in, Studebaker is known as "the dear departed.")

There's no reason for not being just crazy about the Internal Revenue Service. Even though we're all quite closely related to the I.R.S., perhaps it would be better if it didn't emphasize the family part too strongly. How about "Pardner?"

Then, there are those we support who, like the prodigal boy, don't give anything back. Like Lockheed say. Shall we call him "Sonny?"

And if you still have love to offer, why not try one of the conglomerates. That'll put you in a family way.

(A fella is dying ... cashing in his last loose change. As he nears the Great Pay Phone, he is heard to say, "Ma...Ma..." And the answer comes back from the sky ... "Ask not for whom Ma Bell rings. It's for you."

Early grad

Cynthia Hill was graduated from Smith-Cotton High School Wednesday, a semester earlier than normal. Under graduation requirements adopted three years ago, early graduation is possible now, but still difficult. Miss Hill took extra course work and off-campus study to qualify. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hill, 1406 South Carr, Miss Hill plans to enter the Army in March. She is the first student to graduate under the program.

Rose Kennedy back on campaign trail

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rose Kennedy, campaigning for the first time since the death of her son, Sen. Robert Kennedy, attended a fund-raising event for her son-in-law, Democratic presidential aspirant Sargent Shriver.

But she said Friday she was not going to campaign actively for Shriver.

"It's been a long time and I was younger back then," she said in an interview at a $500-a-couple reception in this exclusive South Florida resort, a favorite Kennedy family vacation spot.

Richard Parker, administrative librarian, said the machines are available at the Warsaw and Boonville branch libraries and at the Sedalia headquarters.

The Postal Service's discontinuation of this service prompted the library to initiate the service at its facilities, Parker said.

Library patrons wishing to photocopy articles from magazines or reference books will now be able to do so, Parker said, and the original article will remain at the library for others to use. Persons wanting photocopies are asked to consult a library staff member for assistance in making the copies.

The library will charge 10 cents for regular size copies and 15 cents for legal size copies, Parker said.

Sinatra replies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra had a brief reply to the allegations of Judith Campbell Exner, who claimed that his sexual tastes "ran into areas which might be termed kinky."

"Hell hath no fury like a hustler with a literary agent," Sinatra replied through his press agent.

Mrs. Exner made her comment in an outline for a proposed book about her relationship with President John F. Kennedy.

WARRENSBURG — Miss Roseann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. I. Smith, Route 1, Marshall, recently was initiated into Alpha Omicron Pi, Delta Pi chapter, at Central Missouri State University here.

Caroline Glass, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Glass, 701 West Broadway, and a freshman at The Bishop Whipple Schools, Faribault, Minn., was included in the academic honors list for the fall term.

Bishop Whipple Schools consist of three affiliated boarding schools founded in 1858. Saint Mary's Hall, which Miss Glass attends, is a girls' college preparatory school.

SWEET SPRINGS — Three students from Sweet Springs R-7 High School attended Northwestern's Second Annual Invitational Speech and Drama Tournament last weekend in Mendon.

They were Frank Horner, who took a second place trophy for poetry reading; Donna Arndt, who placed third in story telling; and Leanne Gerlt.

Students explain symbols

Second and third grade students at Mark Twain School recently were asked to write one paragraph about any American symbol and explain what the symbol is and what it means to them. They chose topics ranging from the Liberty Bell to the bald eagle.

The Liberty Bell

Mike Rhoads, second grade: The Liberty Bell was rung on July 8, 1776, to celebrate the Declaration of Independence. The Declaration of Independence was the freedom of the 13 states.

The American Flag

Stephanie Cantrell, second grade: The American Flag has 50 stars and red and white stripes. The flag is important to the people in America. When you see the flag you know we are free and you should put your right hand over your heart and say the pledge.

Kristi Schwickrath, second grade: The United States flag has 50 stars. When you see the flag you should stand at attention. It is red, white and blue.

Nicole Fisher, second grade: Betsy Ross made the first flag. It had 13 stars. They stood for our 13 colonies. And it had seven red and white stripes. The stars were on a blue square. George Washington is said to have her make it. And the flag is important to all of us.

Sarah Schulz, third grade: Red means courage. Blue is for justice and peace. White is for the separation of England. The stars are for the 50 states. We say the pledge to show we care for our country.

Darrin Christina, third grade: Our flag stands for freedom and liberty. Betsy Ross made the first flag. Many People are making flags for the bicentennial.

Jay Labus, third grade: We should respect the flag. We all love our country and the flag. The flag has 50 stars and 13 stripes. Betsy Ross made the bicentennial flag with 13 stars and stripes. Also we should salute the flag every day and say the pledge of allegiance.

Randy Rich, third grade: The flag is red, white and blue. We respect our country. The flag means a lot to the people of the United States. There are 50 stars on the flag.

Uncle Sam

Matt Woodward, second grade: Uncle Sam is a symbol for the red, white and blue. Uncle Sam means freedom, liberty and rights. I think compared to all the countries, we have the most rights.

Bald Eagle

Stephanie Erickson, second grade: The eagle is a symbol of our strongness. He also means our freedom. One of the freedoms is to talk. Another is that we can leave the town and we are also free to move. The Bald Eagle is the bird I love. I love him because he is pretty, like my country.

Tom Allbright, third grade: The eagle is the United States bird. They are trying to save them, because there are few of them left.

State of Liberty

Lana Calvert, third grade: The Statue of Liberty is very, very big. She is a girl that stands in New York. There are over 500 steps up it.

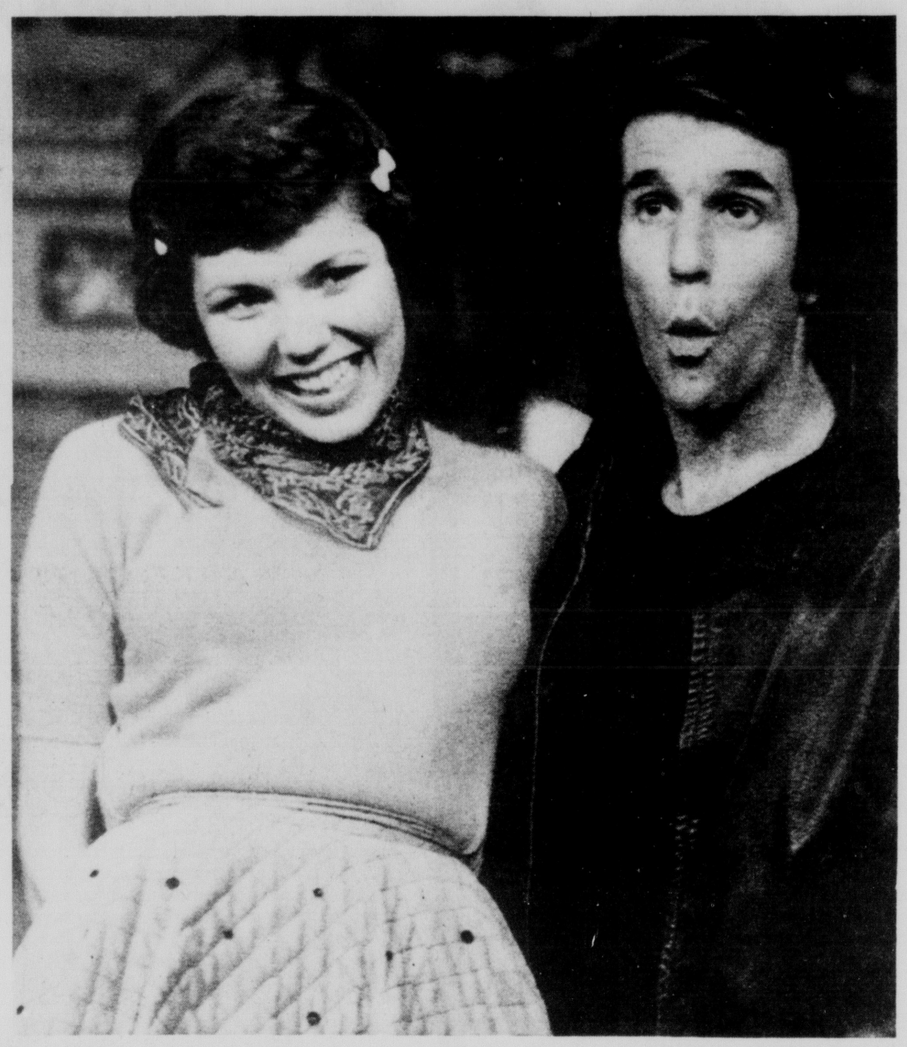
Child beating death results in jail term

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Allen Russell Thurman, 29, Kansas City, was sentenced to five years imprisonment Friday after pleading guilty in the beating death of his 2-year-old stepson.

A coroner's jury had ruled the boy, William Michael Thomas, who died in April 1973, had been feloniously assaulted.

Thurman was found guilty of manslaughter by a Clay County Circuit Court jury at Liberty, Mo., in October 1973 and was sentenced to 10 years in prison. The Missouri Court of Appeals reversed the decision last year and ordered a retrial.

Judge Glennon E. McFarland ordered Friday that 22 months Thurman served after his first conviction be counted against his five-year sentence.



Gets happy part

Henry Winkler, who stars as Fonzi in the TV series "Happy Days" gets a hug from the reigning Miss American Teenager, Cindy Lee, 17, of St. Paul, Minn. Her winning the pageant last year included a role in the series, scheduled to be aired Jan. 27.

Fashion talk

By ERMA BOMBECK

If President Ford and Henry Kissinger really want to know how they're doing on the road to detente, they should check out what fashions are influencing American women.

At one time, people really trusted the government. When the United States embraced a nation in friendship, that was it! We all rushed out and bought clothes that reflected their culture. That was before we got stuck with a closet full of Nehru jackets, a style that flourished for about six days.

The other day as Maxine and I were picking our way through the racks in the sportswear department, I held up a red satin oriental jacket with black braided loops and a mandarin collar and asked, "Whatya think?"

"How much is it?"

"Twenty-six dollars."

"How old is Mao Tse-tung?"

"Eighty-one."

"You want an honest answer?"

"Of course."

"I wouldn't pay $26 for it if Barbara Walters wore it with a China Doll wig."

"Why are you so cynical?"

"Not cynical ... just cautious. I was going to buy an angora sweater the other day, but I'm going to wait and see what direction we're moving."

"That's ANGOLA!" I said. "And besides, you're being too hard on this country. After all, our African bush jackets are still in and so are our Russian boots and big fur hats."

"In until when?" snapped Maxine bitterly. "I have a $34 pair of knee-length boots hanging in the balance over the disarmament talks. One disagreement and they're out!"

"Maybe," I suggested, "by that time the White House will have established detente with New York City and we can palm them off as an American style."

"It's a possibility," she said. "But you know what I really dread? Those sheets that you wear draped over your head and secured with a black ring and those long black robes that are impossible to drive in."

"I know," I sighed. "It's a big price to pay for a couple gallons of gasoline and a quart of oil."

Your Thoughts Are Needed On Important Issues Facing

Rep. Jim Mathewson

Fellow Residents of the 113th District,

This is your opportunity to help me better serve you in Jefferson City as your State Representative. It would have been ideal if I had been able to write to each of you but the cost of printing, postage and other expense factors make that prohibitive. This method of reaching you will show a savings of more than $1,000.00. I would very much appreciate it if you would take the time to answer the questions below and return them to me. My goal is to serve you to the very best of my ability and this can only be done by knowing how you feel about the major issues facing the General Assembly during this session. Thank you for your help and I look forward to serving you.

Sincerely,

Jim

Plenty of achievements but no legends

Remarkable Adams family subject of TV series

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — George Homans sipped his martini, then shattered the calm of the Tavern Club dining room with a loud complaint about the burden of being an Adams during the American Bicentennial.

His cousin, Thomas Boylston Adams, had just introduced a luncheon guest.

"George, this gentleman is interested in Adams descendants."

"Oh, Jesus Christ," roared Homans. "I'm so sick of the Adamses. Thank God, I don't have the name."

Nevertheless, he and cousin Tom are members of a family that includes the second and sixth presidents of the United States, a handful of ambassadors and cabinet members, industrialists and historians; a family that played a key role in founding the Republic and has served it prominently in the generations since.

The cousins sat side by side at the long luncheon table. Both are in their 60s and their large, square, bald heads bear the remarkable resemblance to John Adams and John Quincy Adams that has persisted for generations.

Two other Adamses, also in their 60s, are corporate executives in the Boston area. Their offspring and those of Tom Adams and George Homans, about a dozen young people in all, are following familiar family paths into business, the academic world and the arts.

For all their achievements, the Adamses have inspired no homey legends. American school children hear no stories about an Adams chopping down a cherry tree or reading by firelight in a frontier log cabin.

Instead, they might read Historian Samuel Elliot Morison's description of John Quincy Adams as "a lonely, inarticulate person ... Even in his own New England, Adams was respected rather than loved."

But, at last, Americans are about to get another view of this remarkable family through a 13-part series starting Jan. 20 on public television.

"Now, Tom, what's the status of the damned TV show?" Homans asked his cousin. "That's what's going to make trouble."

Tom Adams turned to Lyman Butterfield, historian and, until his recent retirement, editor and curator of the Adams Papers, the massive collection of diaries and letters written and saved by various members of the family, starting with John Adams.

"Well, I don't particularly like to think about it," said Butterfield. "But the status is they will begin airing episodes the week of January 18th."

"Then I don't have to wince just yet," said Homans.

"See, the rule is very simple," interjected Tom Adams. "If it's not written down in the papers that it didn't happen, then it proves that it did."

Written down in those papers are the daily activities and impressions of a family that helped the United States develop from wilderness settlements into a powerful industrial nation. Starting with a deed dated April 10, 1639, for land in Quincy, Mass., and running through 1889, the papers fill 27,464 feet of microfilm.

And that does not include the contributions of later generations.

Before he became vice president under George Washington and president in 1797, John Adams had served in the Continental Congress and as a member of the diplomatic mission that obtained European recognition of the new nation.

His son, John Quincy Adams, held a number of diplomatic posts, and was first United States minister to Russia before he became sixth President of the United States in 1825. After he left the White House he was elected to Congress, where, for the next 18 years he was a powerful opponent of the pro-slavery forces. He collapsed and died on the House floor on Feb. 23, 1848.

Their diaries and letters soften an austere public image of the Adamses.

For example, the only entry in John Adams' diary for Saturday, June 5, 1756, was: "Dreamed away the whole afternoon."

And 10-year-old John Quincy Adams wrote to his father that he was "a poor figure at composition" and preferred "to receive letters very well much better than I love to write them."

Nonetheless, his diaries alone, when published, are expected to fill more than 20 volumes.

The Bicentennial may make some Adamses fear for their privacy, but it is nothing compared with how the family viewed the possibility the public might one day have access to all those diaries and letters.

Butterfield recalled that when he first approached Henry Adams II, who controlled the papers from 1927 to his death in 1951, "he didn't answer my letter."

Homans, a professor of sociology at Harvard, said he always advocated publication of the papers.

"But I remember in the cousin Harry era," said Homans, "I would say why don't you publish all this damned stuff, cousin Harry? And he always implied there were some terrible scandals and, indeed, there were, though not the kind of scandals that I thought we need worry about nowadays."

"They were just worried about what they didn't know," said Butterfield. "It's impossible to imagine that any scandal that did occur, or could have occurred, could tarnish, could degrade the memory of John Adams and John Quincy Adams."

The family had its embarrassments. There was John Quincy Adams' eldest son, who apparently was unable to cope with being the son and grandson of presidents. He vanished one night from a ship on Long Island Sound, a probable suicide.

And there was the suicide of the wife of Henry Adams, grandson of John Quincy. His "The Education of Henry Adams" is generally listed as a classic among autobiographies.

Henry Adams was one of the family members who destroyed his diaries and all of his letters that he could recover from recipients.

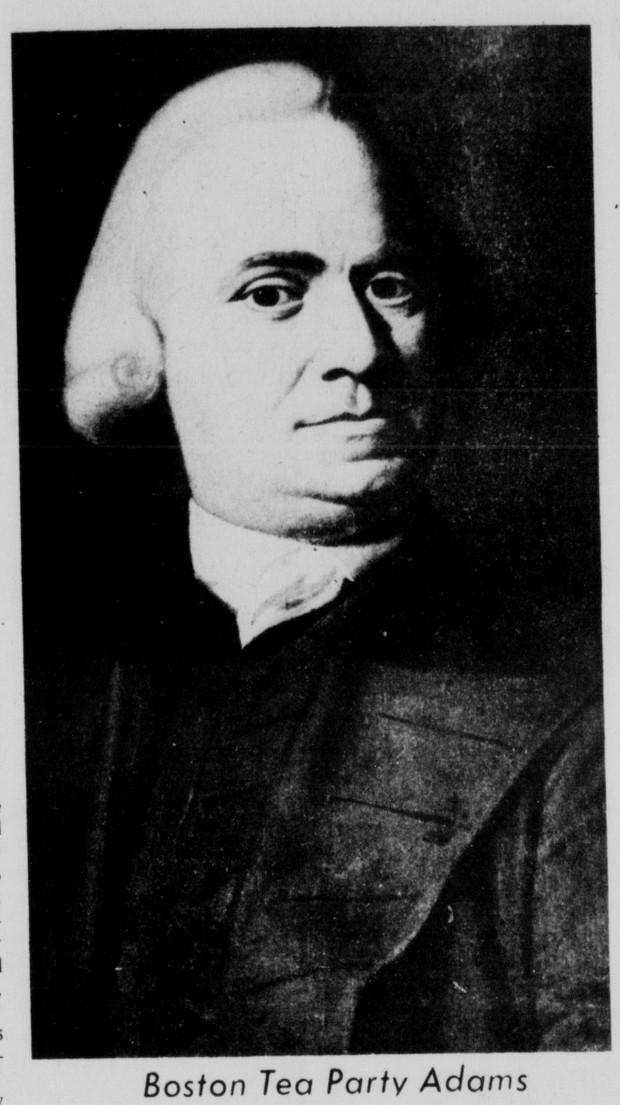
"His motives were perfectly clear," said Butterfield. "He felt intensely private. He did not want anybody writing his life; he wrote his own life."

"I'm told there are a a lot of Henry Adams' letters to Mrs. Cameron in the Cameron descendants' possession that are really passionate," said Homans.

"Well, they're pretty warm stuff," said Butterfield. He nodded toward Homans and added, "There are those who take their families reverently and those who take them ..."

"Irreverently," said Homans. "I take it somewhat irreverently. I think the Adamses undoubtedly have great qualities, but I still stand as a judgment on the whole of the family on what Benjamin Franklin said of John Adams: 'Always an honest man, often a wise man, but under some circumstances, absolutely out of his senses.' That goes for the whole crowd so far as I'm concerned. I don't think that was true of Charles Francis, but it was true of all the rest."

Charles Francis Adams, youngest son of John Quincy Adams and father of Henry Adams, was U.S. ambassador to Great Britain during the Civil War and played a key role in convincing European powers from attempting to capitalize on the conflict.



Boston Tea Party Adams

One of the many famous Adams — portrayed here is Sam Adams, 1722-1803. Political leader and revolutionary statesman, second cousin to John Adams, he was Boston-born and was closely associated with events leading to the Boston Tea Party. A television series this Bicentennial year will tell the story of this family which played a key role in founding the Republic and has served it prominently every since. (AP)

Day of longer trucks is coming

By VAL CORLEY
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sixty-five-foot twin-trailer trucks will become legal in Iowa May 1 unless the legislature rejects them within 60 days, Atty. Gen. Richard Turner has ruled. The legislature is expected to allow the long trucks.

"It's a political issue," said Transportation Commission Chairman Robert Rigler of New Hampton. "The world is not coming to an end if they are on the highways. But many people feel very strongly about the issue."

Iowa is the last state west of the Mississippi River to authorize the 65-foot so-called double-bottom trucks.

The Transportation Commission earlier approved the longer trucks, but only on the condition that the legislature ban studded snow tires and implement functional classification of highways.

"This strongly suggests coercion and in any case is in excess of the statutory authority" granted the commission, Turner said.

Turner said the commission's stipulations were illegal, but the rule to allow the 65-foot trucks would stand if the legislature does not act.

Rigler said he would not appeal Turner's opinion.

"Others may decide to take it to court," Rigler said. "I have no intention to take it to court. I don't think any of the commissioners feel that strongly about it to go to the extent of a suit."

The legislature originally approved allowing the trucks, five feet longer than the current maximum length, two years ago. But Gov. Robert Ray vetoed the measure.

Then when the Department of Transportation was created, the legislature gave the Transportation Commission power to allow the twin-trailer trucks by rule if the General Assembly did not veto the action within 60 days.

The commission had its first chance to authorize the 65-foot trucks last January but did not recommend them.

Then Tuesday it voted to permit them "effective the day the General Assembly sends the enrolled bills outlawing studded tires and implementing functional classification to the governor."

"It is clear from the plain language of (authorizing legislation) that the Transportation Commission is granted no authority thereunder to prohibit directly the use of studded tires on the highways of Iowa or to implement functional classification of highways," Turner said in the opinion requested by Sen. W.R. Rabedeaux, R-Wilton.

Rabedeaux was the sponsor of the bill vetoed by Ray.

"It is our opinion that so much of the resolution adopted by the Transportation Commission, which purports to make the effective date of the legalization of 65-foot double bottoms contingent on the specified actions of the General Assembly, is invalid and of no force and effect," Turner said.

"In our opinion, if the General Assembly approves the rule or takes no action with respect to the same within the 60 day time period provided by law, that portion of the report which legalizes 65-foot double bottom trucks will become effective May 1, 1976," Turner said.

"PUSH BUTTON" DRYING

AUTOMATION AT WORK
With a Circu-Lator in your bin, simply begin to fill the drying bin with wet grain as fast as you harvest. (You have a wet holding capacity as large as the Circu-Lator bin.) Dial the desired moisture content on the automatic control—it will automatically signal the tapered sweep auger to remove an even layer of grain as it becomes dry. This grain is transferred to an adjacent bin for storage and cooling.

The drying process proceeds automatically, 24 hours per day without babysitting, until adjacent storage bins are full.

The Circu-Lator bin is then filled and Recirculated under automatic control until dry. No babysitting is required.

OVER 4000 CIRCU-LATORS IN OPERATION
During the past six harvest seasons, 4000 Owner-Operators have proven the success of the Circu-Lator across the Corn-Belt and around the World. Somewhere not too far from you a Shivvers machine is installed. Ask your Shivvers Dealer for the location, then visit the Owner-Operator for first-hand information.

Coyote bounty disliked by most

The Pettis County Court's reinstatement of coyote bounties got a solid thumbs-down from 61 per cent of The Democrat-Capital's readers who responded to last Sunday's Sound Off question. The inquiry brought 26 answers.

Readers were asked: "The Pettis County Court has set aside $4,000 in its new budget as a bounty for coyotes, saying the animals are becoming an increasing menace. It is the first time such a bounty ($2.50 for a coyote pup scalp and $5 for an adult animal) has been offered since the early 1970's, when suspected abuses and loss of state funds led the county to discontinue the system. Based on what you know, do you feel that reinstating the bounty system is justified?"

Annette Jenkins, 2902 Darryl Drive, wrote, "Coyotes subsist on rodents, birds and large insects. This should make the coyote an asset. To put a bounty on an adult coyote is cruel enough, but to put a bounty on a coyote puppy's scalp is inhuman. He will have no chance of survival ... Many of these animals will die torturous deaths. Countless others will be maimed. Because of man's greed, not many will escape ... Surely man, with all of his intelligence, can think of a better, more humane way to control innocent coyotes."

A reader who asked not to be identified wrote, "Yes, the bounty is justified. The coyotes run two and three together. They destroy pigs up to 30 pounds. The only way you can save pigs anymore is to raise them in a barn with the door closed. They also get calves over a month old by diverting the cow."

Another reader with similar views wrote, "Since we've not had a bounty, they (coyotes) have increased greatly. We live in the southern side of the county and see many, often in packs. We haven't lost any farm animals, but know of some who have. We say 'thanks' to the coyote hunters who helped reduce the population last winter. This bounty will help pay for part of their expense and should be an incentive for future hunting..."

Jean Lindecrantz, 1201 South Lamine, a member of the Missouri Humane Society, wrote, "Bounties don't need to be offered before man will kill Coyotes and other animals will be killed by people who give no thought to money, but wish only to protect their property. In the first place, studies have shown that over 85 per cent of a coyote's food sources consist of rabbit, rodents and wounded or dead animals. They may turn to other sources only when there seems to be no other choice, as do most animals.

"Much of the present misunderstanding could be eliminated if people would realize that coyotes are a necessary counterbalance in nature. Why can't $4,000 be allocated to improve existing animal shelter conditions and form a responsible city or county humane organization for the protection of animals before it's too late?"

Marie Shipwright, 1001 South Limit, wrote, "We hunt and kill their natural food, we move into and destroy their habitat and we overlook the fact that they live almost exclusively on mice, moles, rabbits, insects and snakes and are more helpful in controlling rabbits and rodents. To settle this seemingly endless controversy, there have been many autopsies on coyotes and their stomach contents reveal that mice constitute 90 per cent of their diet ... He is famous the world over as perhaps the most 'American' of all wild animals, but if our persistence and determination to destroy continue, he will join the wolf on the list of endangered species. The Pettis County budget is already strained, so why set aside $4,000 for bounty — man will kill the coyote without any promotional devices, just because he is a coyote."

A reader who asked not to be identified wrote, "Perhaps this is needed in some areas of the county. However, a great deal of caution should be exercised to preclude over-kill of these predatory animals as they, when not over-populated, are a controlling factor for various harmful rodents. In many cases killing of pigs, turkeys, chickens and other farm animals are blamed on the wolf, coyote or fox, when the culprit is really dogs and-or cats that have gone wild ... I personally would ra.. " have five coyotes on the loose .han one wild dog or house cat."

Another reader said, "I lived on a farm 73 years and I know what coyotes can do. They live on bird eggs, quails, turkeys, chickens. They kill young pigs, calves, deer, sheep and lambs. I liked to hear (of) the $5 for old coyotes..."

Skip Doak, 1418 South Sneed, wrote, "There is absolutely no justification for the proposed bounty system. The reason the state discontinued it is because it was proved unsuccessful. It did not significantly lower the population of coyotes ... The same people hunt coyotes with or without the bounty. They, like other hunters, hunt for sport. Why not pay others for hunting deer or ducks?"

And finally this unsigned noted: "The decision of the county judges to reinstate the bounty for coyote scalps can only be described as asinine. If the County Court judges are incapable of finding a better use for our tax dollars, I suggest we replace them in the November election."

SFCC drama students in play

"The Liberated Dragon," a children's fantasy play by Faye Head, will be presented by State Fair Community College drama students at various elementary schools in the SFCC district, it was announced Friday by college drama instructor Ron Wineinger.

The play will also be presented for Sedalia students in the SFCC student union.

The plot involves the king of a mythical kingdom who initially promises that his daughter may marry at a certain date but later wishes to renege on his pledge He thus decrees a seeming! impossible task which must be completed by his daughter's suitors if they wish to marry her. The first one to capture a dragon will marry his daughter. The ensuing adventures, in addition to the colorful sets and costumes, make this play very entertaining for young people, Wineinger said.

The performance schedule is as follows: Feb. 2, 9:45 a.m. at Sweet Springs elementary school and 1:30 p.m. at the Houstonia elementary school; Feb. 3, 9:45 a.m. at the Cole Camp elementary school and 1:30 p.m. at the Lincoln elementary school; Feb. 4, 9:45 a.m. at the Smithton elementary school and 1:30 p.m. at the Otterville elementary school; Feb. 5, 8:30 a.m. at the Dresden elementary school, 10 a.m. at the LaMonte elementary school and 1:30 p.m. at the Green Ridge elementary school; Feb. 6, 10 a.m. at the Warsaw north elementary school and 1:30 p.m. at the Warsaw south elementary school; Feb. 7, 2 p.m. at the SFCC student union.

The play will be performed by special permission of the Performer's Publishing Co.

Successor named for representative

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. (AP) — Democrats selected Larry Erne, Montgomery County treasurer, to succeed the late Gay Brokaw as state representative in Kansas' 7th District at a meeting in Coffeyville Friday night.

Brokaw, who resigned at the first of the month because of illness, found shot to death in his home Friday. Police said the wounds apparently were self inflicted. Brokaw was 78.

Unihorn steer

Rancher George Magonical of Lincoln, Calif., crossed a shorthorn with a Hereford and nature came up with this one-horned steer. The steer originally had the conventional two horns. These were cut and the one horn sprouted unicorn-style. Magonical values the seven-year-old animal at $2,000.

Supplemental payments cut by new law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new federal law has cut in half the federal supplemental payments jobless Missourians are now eligible to receive.

Geoffrey McCarron, director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations said Friday unemployed workers will get only 13 weeks of benefits under the supplemental program instead of the 26 provided in the past.

Effective Jan. 4, the payment of federal assistance money will depend on the number of payments already received and the average rate of unemployment during the preceeding 13 weeks.

Division of Employment Security Director John Meystrik said if the state's unemployment rate drops below the 5 per cent level, the federal supplemental program will be phased out.

Sgt. Joseph C. Prater

New recruiter is named for Sedalia area

Sgt. Joseph C. Prater was recently assigned as the new representative for the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, 510 South Ohio, which serves Benton, Morgan and Pettis Counties.

Before coming to Sedalia, Prater's last assignment was as personnel service noncommissioned officer with the 6th Battalion, 3d Brigade at Ft. Ord, Calif.

Sgt. Prater and his wife, Martha, and their three children now reside in Sedalia.

In ranks

Marine Private First Class William D. Martin, son of Dorsey E. Martin, 1501 South Moniteau, has been meritoriously promoted to his present rank upon graduation from recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

He received the early promotion for his superior performance in all phases of the training, which emphasizes physical conditioning, discipline and teamwork.

AQ3 Stanley D. Jarvis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Jarvis, 908 Royal, is home on leave from the Naval Air Station at LeMoore, Calif.

Another Social Security hike is ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security will take a bigger bite from workers' paychecks in 1977 if a proposal by President Ford is approved by Congress. And congressional approval seems likely.

Ford will ask the Congress in his budget message next Wednesday to increase the Social Security tax rate from 5.85 per cent to 6.15 per cent, effective Jan. 1, 1977.

That would mean that a worker would pay $6.15 out of each $100 he earns for Social Security compared to $5.85 this year. The worker's payment would be matched by his or her employer.

Ford's budget also will include an increase in the defense budget, an expected tax decrease and a provision requiring Medicare patients to pay more of their own bills.

The Social Security tax payments would be made on about the first $16,500 of income, so that the maximum deduction from any American worker's paycheck during 1977 would be $1,014, up from the maximum of $895 on income up to $15,300 this year.

The wage base would not be affected by Ford's proposal — but the base rises automatically each year anyway since it is linked to changes in average national wage rates.

Ford, however, plans to tell Congress he will not oppose this year — as he did in 1974 and 1975 — full cost of living increases for recipients of Social Security and other federal retirement programs.

The last increase in the Social Security tax rate was from 5.2 to 5.85 per cent in 1973, which coincided with the provision for automatic cost-of-living increases of 20 per cent for recipients.

Since Social Security became law during the Depression, the tax rate has been increased 12 times, rising from 1 per cent to the current 5.85 per cent. The wage base has been raised 10 times from $3,000 in 1937 to the current $15,300.

In general, benefits have increased in election years and taxes have increased afterward.

Ford will tell Congress he knows the increase in the tax rate will be controversial, but he will contend it is needed because the trust fund from which Social Security payments are made is being depleted.

Congress is likely to give the proposal favorable consideration since some leading Democrats already have indicated they favor an increase.

Last year, the Social Security Advisory Committee and the Social Security trustees, who include Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, had recommended early action to halt the decrease in the trust fund, either by raising the tax rate or increasing the wage base.

Ford's over-all budget for fiscal 1977, which begins next Oct. 1, will provide for expenditures of $394 billion, and revenues of $351 billion, leaving a deficit for the year of $43 billion.

Other provisions of the budget will include:

—An increase in defense expenditures from the current ceiling of about $92 billion to about $101 billion, which Ford will say is necessary to maintain a strong defense posture.

—Consolidation of various grants to the states in the areas of medical care, child nutrition programs, education for handicapped children and social services for the elderly.

—A tax decrease of $10 billion to carry out the over-all $28 billion permanent tax reduction proposed by Ford in October.

MONTGOMERY WARD BARGAINS FOR BABY

Pearl Richardson Days

Montgomery Ward honors MRS. PEARL RICHARDSON, who was employed October 7, 1944, as a sales clerk in Women's fashion department in the Montgomery Ward store then located at 218 South Ohio. She then worked in shoes, Men's wear, and lingerie. She was manager of boyswear from August 14, 1946, to April of 1947, when she was moved into infant's wear as Department manager.

When the store relocated to its present location at 4th and Osage in 1960, Mrs. Richardson was also made responsible for girl's wear in addition to infant's wear. She is now the senior employee in terms of over 31 years of continuous service, and will be retiring at the end of this month.
We invite you to stop in and join us in observance of this occasion.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

In Combination With The Sunday Morning Capital

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday, Jan. 18, 1976—Section B

It all starts Monday in Iowa

Nominating system to help dark horse candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political reformers have reshaped the presidential nominating system, and the changes could help Republican Ronald Reagan and might, ironically, send Democrats back to a smoke-filled room to bargain on their candidate.

The process begins Monday (Jan. 19) in Iowa where Democrats will hold caucuses in more than 2,500 precincts, the first step toward the eventual selection at a state convention of delegates to the national convention.

Under the reform rules adopted by both major parties the caucus-convention procedure is wide open, with everyone able to participate and any candidate who can inspire a following having a shot at winning delegates.

But most of the delegates, about 75 per cent of them, will be chosen or committed in primary elections in 30 states. There were 23 primaries in 1972.

The primaries and the conventions have some important common features under the new rules. First, they make it easier for a dark horse to win convention delegates, especially in the case of the Democrats who have adopted a proportional representation rule and have eliminated winner-take-all primaries.

Secondly, they favor the candidate with charisma and the ability to excite activist supporters.

People who troop through the snow to vote in primaries early in the year or stay through all-night caucuses are generally the political activists who support ideological candidates of the right or left.

The great mass of middle ground voters tend to prefer centrist candidates in November but frequently they don't bother to vote in the primaries.

This year none of the Democrats seems to be attracting the kind of devoted throngs of young supporters Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern drew.

But on the Republican side, Ronald Reagan, former California governor and movie star, appears to have the charisma and ideological commitment to enlist the activists.

The very reforms that have opened the nominating process and made delegate distribution agonizingly fair have made it less likely that any Democratic candidate will go to the national convention in New York next July with a commanding lead.

However, surviving candidates should have blocs of faithful delegates whose votes could be traded. So the final horse-trading and nominating of a presidential candidate may be done in the smoke-filled rooms the reforms were supposed to end.

The caucuses, conventions and primaries of both parties are open to any interested citizen who wants to take part — although both Democrats and Republicans are trying to limit participation to party members.

Secret meetings have been banned. The sessions at which delegates to the various meetings are chosen must be open and advertised in advance.

In addition, old rules which allowed politicos to control a meeting by voting masses of proxies have been banned by both parties. Democrats permit a form of proxy voting, but only a person who actually shows up at a meeting may leave a proxy, if he departs before the meeting ends.

So the candidate who can get the most fans to the early caucuses will get the biggest share of a state's national convention delegates.

On the eve of the first caucus, Reagan appears to be the only candidate of either party possibly capable of packing caucuses with his supporters. He is clearly identified as a strong conservative with a committed constituency to draw from.

Unless President Ford can stir his supporters enough to tramp through the snow and sit through all-night caucuses, all the patronage and prestige of the White House may not be enough to offset a youth-oriented Reagan assault.

In addition to what reformers have done to the caucuses, the new rules have encouraged some states to switch from conventions to primary elections because they are less vulnerable to challenge and simpler to supervise. Primaries also tend to favor candidates with clearly established ideological appeal.

The Democratic vote seems more splintered than ever, with most candidates playing it safe ideologically.

The main reason is the Democrats' new rule on proportional representation, forbidding winner-take-all primaries. The biggest casualty is the California primary, which traditionally has come late in the season and has awarded the nation's largest bloc of delegates to the statewide winner.

In 1972 McGovern beat Hubert Humphrey in California, took all the delegates, and clinched the Democratic nomination. In 1964 Barry Goldwater took California over Nelson Rockefeller and sewed up the Republican nomination.

Now the winner in each congressional district in California gets that district's delegates instead of the statewide winner getting them all. Consequently, the state's delegation is likely to be divided among several candidates.

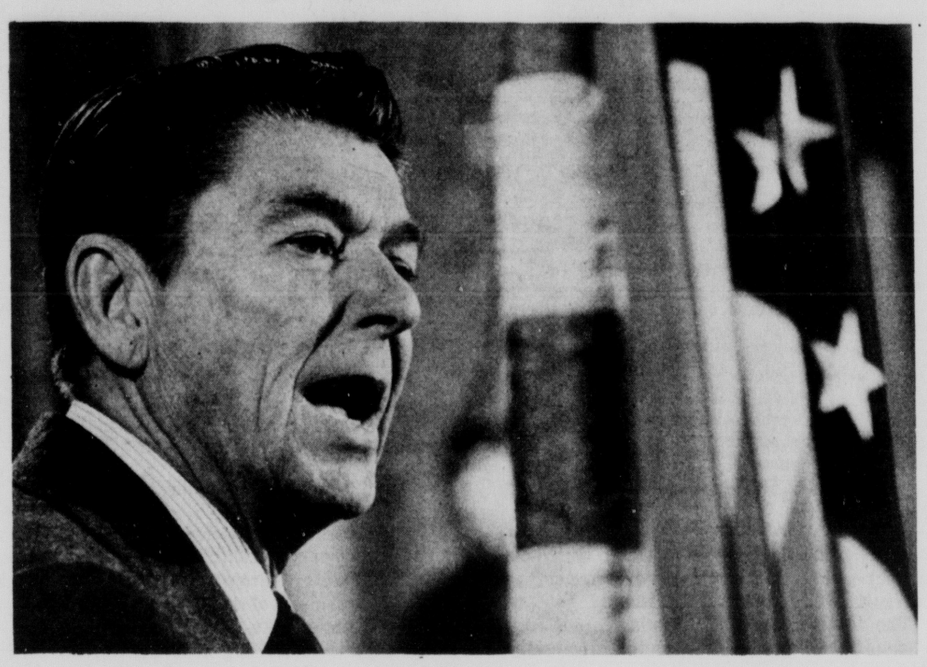
The possibility of a brokered convention is enhanced by another new rule adopted by the Democrats for 1976 — the right of a candidate to approve or disapprove of any delegate selected at the state level as pledged to him.

This means the delegate is more likely to be personally committed to the candidate to whom he is publicly pledged. And that means the candidate will be better able to control his own delegates and wheel and deal with their votes.

Organized labor, which found its power embarrassingly trimmed by the reforms in 1972, could be a far more significant force at a brokered 1976 convention.

This time labor leaders are preparing to run in their states pledged to the candidate most likely to carry the state. This way most of them are likely to get to the convention, unlike 1972 when many bet on the wrong horse or tried in vain to get elected as uncommitted delegates.

In the event of a deadlocked, multi-ballot convention, the labor delegates would pose a sizeable and cohesive bloc once their original commitments had expired after the first few ballots.



New rules for the game

Republican Ronald Reagan, shown announcing his presidential candidacy in November, is one of those who may benefit from the new look in the nominating system. New rules for both Democrats and Republicans may make it easier for a dark horse without political connections and could favor a candidate with charisma and the ability to excite activist supporters. The first test begins Monday when Iowa Democrats begin the process of selecting their delegates to the national nominating convention.

Meany will 'mo' for any Democrat

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Labor John T. Dunlop's resignation has had its effect on the powerful "eeny - meaney - miney - mo" — the AFL-CIO president. George Meany will go all "mo" for any Democrat who wins the presidential nomination in July's New York convention. This is in contrast to the 1968 election when some leaders sulked and scattered their votes and even voted for Richard Nixon. None of the union leaders will know how their rank and file members will vote. Thank goodness even high-powered unions cannot take away the freedom of choice in political elections, but it is estimated that many of the members will play follow the leaders.

The financial restraint will be noticeable this year because the law puts a contribution ceiling of $5,000 by any organization or committee, but the unions will still be free to raise money from its individual members for political contributions. The unions want a change in the White House and they are willing to solicit bodies who will telephone and ring doorbells for the Democrats.

January heralds the return of Congress after its Christmas recess, with the President's State of the Union message tomorrow and the Washington Press Club's annual Salute to Congress dinner Jan. 28. It is rumored that at least the 75 freshman Democrats paid extra attention to their homework during the recent recess and are running scared. Their early ambitions for reform got sidetracked and many of them who concentrated on being good legislators are now concerned about being re-elected. Incumbency is always favorable, so many are counting on that as well as the new campaign law which limits House races to $70,000. Some of the freshmen are nervous about their Americans for Democratic Action ratings and have urged that organization not to rate their first year. They do not wish to be regarded as too liberal. The Republicans are feeling more optimistic because this year they will not have to face Watergate.

The President's Economic Council Chairman Alan Greenspan made this significant statement: "If you allowed me to see only one statistic a year in advance, I'd ask to see the personal savings rate. This would tell me a lot." Hobart Rowen, financial editor of the Washington Post, replied: "To make Greenspan totally happy, you would also have to give him the rate of business expansion for plant and equipment, a big question mark for 1976." Both admit the business forecast for the bicentennial year is "middling good."

Sigurdson-Lyles repeat vows

CANBY, Minn. — Red, white and blue carnations adorned the altar of Our Saviour Lutheran Church here for the 5:30 p.m. Dec. 30 wedding of Miss Vicki Lynn Sigurdson and Richard David Lyles.

The Rev. Earl Dreyer performed the candlelight, double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Sigurdson, Canby, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lyles, 1012 West Fourth, Sedalia.

Mrs. Delores Peterson was the organist and the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Johnson, were the vocalists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white dulcett satin and reembroidered Alencon lace gown styled with a lace bodice highlighted with pearls, high neckline and traditional sleeves appliqued with lace. Her A-line skirt featured a deep V lace border that swept her hemline and her detachable chapel length train was enhanced with lace appliques. Her chapel length veil was trimmed with Alencon lace.

Mrs. Elroy (Christine) Quenroe, matron of honor, wore a burgundy velvet gown, trimmed with white lace, which featured a high neckline and long sleeves. Fresh blue and white mums served as her headpiece.

The groom's father attended his son as best man. Elroy Quenroe was the usher and Steve Lyles, the groom's brother, was the candlelighter.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Chalet Supper Club, Marshall, Minn., Dec. 29.

The couple are at home at Charlottesville, Va., where the bride is a member of the nursing staff of the University of Virginia Hospital. A 1972 graduate of Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S.D., where she majored in nursing, the bride was formerly employed as a staff nurse at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

The groom, a 1973 graduate of Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, where he received a degree in music, is presently serving as a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army, stationed on the staff and faculty of Judge Advocate General's School at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

Married Jan. 3

Miss Barbara Anne Ross and Frederick Dale Grafton were married Jan. 3 at Christ Episcopal Church, Rolla. The Rev. Joseph Carlo performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Ross, Rolla, and the son of Mrs. C. F. Grafton, Charlotte, N.C. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. J.C. Griffin, 2401 West 11th. The couple's honor attendants were Mrs. Larry Terbroch and Gerald Dombeck. After a reception at the Manor Inn, Rolla, the couple honeymooned in the Bahamas and are at home at Peoria, Ill. The bride was graduated in December from the University of Missouri-Columbia with a degree in English and the groom, a graduate of the University of Missouri-Rolla, received his masters degree in engineering management in December and is employed by the Caterpillar Co., Peoria.

Couple wed in Jeff City

JEFFERSON CITY — The First United Presbyterian Church here was the setting for the 7 p.m. Dec. 27 wedding of Miss Jeen Stacy Harrison and Dean Irvin Steiger.

The Revs. Charles D. Ross and Arthur M. Hughes performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Norman Harrison, Jefferson City, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Steiger, New Haven. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. John Martin, 1601 West Broadway, Sedalia.

Their honor attendants were Miss Debbie Thompson and Steve Balven.

The bride, a 1973 graduate of Jefferson City High School, will graduate from the University of Missouri-Columbia in December. The groom, a 1972 graduate of Washington High School, will graduate from the University in May.

MRS. DEAN IRVIN STEIGER
Miss Jeen Stacy Harrison

Couple wed Jan. 2

United in marriage in a double ring ceremony at Olive Branch Baptist Church near Beaman Jan. 2 were Miss Lori Suzanne McMullin and Ronald Dean Barker.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn F. McMullin, Route 5. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Barker, Route 4.

The Rev. Cecil O'Neill performed the ceremony before a setting of candelabra and greenery. Miss Julie Green was the pianist and Miss Lesa Kroeger and Miss Michele Ash were soloists. Miss Terry Barker, sister of the groom, was the candlelighter.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a winter white satin gown styled with a scooped neckline and sheer lace bishop sleeves. A lace bandeau secured her shoulder length veil.

Mrs. Louisa Smith, matron of honor, wore a rose-colored gown with white feathered sleeves.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church basement. For traveling on a honeymoon to the Lake of the Ozarks, the bride wore a pink pantsuit.

The couple is at home on Route 4.

Grow up on your own

I feel real sorry for the kids
Pulled into drugs, you see
I well remember friends of mine
Who tried such a stunt with me.
My mother didn't smoke or drink
And neither did my dad
But neither said a word to me,
They thought that it was bad.
I was more strict than either one,
I had this built-in rule
On things I didn't want to do,
I was stubborn as a mule.
I followed no one's pattern,
What others did I did not care,
But now, let me tell you,
They sure got in my hair
In trying to get me smoking,
At me they poked such fun,
Pressured, kidded, insulted,
For I was the only one,
The only one in that group,
But other friends like I
This new smoking fad for girls
They simply did not buy.
The same thing with drinking,
People often still are rude,
I wasn't in early life a square
'Twas then they called it prude.
And once a friend told a hostess
To put liquor in my Coke,
They thought that I would drink it
And on me would have a joke
But I smelled the liquor
Even when she set it down.
"I want a Coke, not liquor"
I told her with a frown.
This woman whom I just had met
Was embarrassed no end,
She said she had put it in
At the suggestion of my friend.
And I have found as life went on
That youth has lots at stake,
The habits that they do not form
They never have to break,
Some do not become alcoholics
Because they drink, that's true,
But certainly too many
By social drinking do,
Some smoke throughout their lives
Without bad results, I know,
But habits, any habits,
Will grow and grow and grow,
And there have always been drugs, too,
Never as bad as now,
But to anything you're urged to do
You do not have to bow.
A person of any age
Who stands on their two feet
Who listens not to others
But are wise and discreet
Will find they are never tangled
In a hopeless, helpless net
If they follow their good judgment
They'll have nothing to regret.
It is easy to get entwined
When your friends point the way
But too often the price is vast
That weaklings have to pay.
They paint a picture as beautiful
As the delicate spider web
Yet, like to the fly, as treacherous
When your life begins to ebb.
These things are not the things in life
To prove that you are grown
The test of men and women
Is to grow up on your own,
To be able to say "No!"
The most important word of all,
Ability to mold their status
Is what makes the great stand tall.

Bounties are back in Pettis County

The Pettis County Court got back into the bounty business when it voted recently to start paying for coyote scalps. The court budgeted $4,000 for the so-called "wolf" bounties.

No matching state funds are included in this item, since the state quit paying bounty funds a few years ago, after becoming convinced that it was not a particularly sound investment.

The question of bounties is a controversial one, as the results of last week's Sound Off question show in today's paper. Those opposed to bounties attack them on both economic and preservationist grounds. They point out that bounties have not proved effective in controlling coyote populations, since the species continued to proliferate even during the high-bounty years.

Others maintain that the coyote is not really the livestock predator he is cracked up to be, citing studies that show the typical coyote's diet consists mainly of rodents, rabbits and other small animals, as well as carrion. This is the position of the Missouri Department of Conservation.

On the other side are some farmers, who claim that coyotes are a menace to livestock and say the problem is getting worse. The County Court said it reinstated the bounties in response to such complaints. Yet other farmers maintain the problem is negligible.

Also on the pro-bounty side are the people who hunt coyotes for sport, utilizing trucks, dogs and CB radios. They would continue to hunt coyotes bounty or no bounty, and critics have a good point in asking why the taxpayers should subsidize hunters.

At the time Pettis County suspended paying bounties around 1971, one of the reasons cited was the suspicion that a considerable number of out-of-county coyote scalps were being hauled into Sedalia for payment. Even as things stand now, surrounding counties either pay no bounties at all or lower ones that does Pettis, a situation that will probably encourage more of the same.

After some experience with this, the Pettis County Court may again decide that it isn't worth it.

Merry-go-round

Justice Department after Gov. Shapp

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Pennsylvania's Gov. Milton Shapp called on us several weeks ago to complain that the Justice Department was hounding him. He was the victim, he alleged, of a "political investigation" directed by Assistant Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh.

Before Thornburgh came to Washington, he was the U.S. attorney in Pittsburgh. He campaigned against Shapp and accused him of improprieties worse than Watergate. Now Thornburgh is using his new powers in the Justice Department, Shapp charged, to try to make the charges come true.

These were serious allegations coming, as they did, from a powerful governor and presidential contender. At first, Shapp appeared to be the darkest horse in the Democratic presidential race. But in a poll taken at a Democratic convention in the key state of Florida, Shapp placed second to Georgia's ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter and beat out Alabama's Gov. George Wallace.

Therefore, we sent out reporter Marc Smolonsky to Pennsylvania to check into Shapp's complaints. Smolonsky has spent more than a month on the investigation. He has interviewed a host of state officials and government investigators from Harrisburg to Washington. Here are our conclusions:

✔We found systematic corruption, including organized crime links, throughout the Shapp administration. During his two terms, 57 state officials have been indicted by grand juries. Except for an allegation of perjury in a complex contracts case, however, no wrongdoing has been attributed directly to the governor.

✔Another grand jury indictment, which should shake up the Shapp administration, is expected within 10 days. Sources close to the investigation say Edgalio "Gene" Cerilli, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, will be indicted on federal kickback charges.

Cerilli told us he was unaware of the possible indictment, had no idea what the charges could be based on and, in any event, had taken no kickbacks. Shapp said he couldn't believe Cerilli was guilty of the charges.

✔Reliable eyewitnesses have seen state officials sitting at the same restaurant table with Joseph Scalleat who, according to the Pennsylvania Crime Commission, is a Pennsylvania underworld boss. He has a regular table and telephone set-up at Lombardo's restaurant near the capitol building in Harrisburg.

Among the high officials who have been spotted at his table are Lt. Gov. Ernest Klein and the Liquor Control Board's chief counsel, Harry Bowytz. Both Klein and Bowytz admitted seeing Scalleat in Lombardo's but denied meeting with him.

✔George Greenblat, vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, formerly owned an interest in Luv Motors, an American Motors dealership in Allentown, Pa. He also became a paid consultant for American Motors in 1971-74 while he was a turnpike official. During this same period, Pennsylvania suddenly began buying American Motors cars.

Greenblat is also part owner of a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership in Allentown. Curiously enough, the state also began purchasing Chrysler-Plymouth cars after Greenblat became a state official.

Governor Shapp admitted this didn't look good but expressed confidence in Greenblat. Federal authorities, meanwhile, are investigating. Greenblat denied any conflict of interest.

✔The Philadelphia Strike Force is investigating alleged violations of the Pennsylvania liquor code by the Thrifty Beverage Company. The task force is also attempting to untangle some alleged mobster and political ties to the beverage firm.

✔Federal investigators are also looking into charges that Pennsylvania's Attorney General Robert Kane wrongly granted immunity to at least one prominent politician who had been accused of taking kickbacks. Since we couldn't reach the politician for comment, we will withhold his name. Kane denied any wrongdoing.

✔Shapp himself has been accused of lying to the State Contract Practice Committee on Oct. 8, 1974. His testimony dealt with the complex, controversial sale of a cable television franchise. Shapp was a pioneer in cable television and founded the Williamsport, Pa., Cable TV Company.

This is not the end of the story. We counted at least 21 separate state and federal investigations into the Pennsylvania government. However, the details tend to be repetitious.

OPPRESSION IN PARAGUAY: Paraguay has arrested a famed anthropologist, Prof. Miguel Chase Sardi, who dared to oppose President Alfredo Stroessner's genocide policies against the Ache Indians. Arrested with the professor but released, was Marilyn Renhfeldt, who also had sought civil rights for the Indians.

In the past, Stroessner actually permitted wealthy Paraguayans and foreign "sportsmen" to hunt the Ache like animals, competent sources have told us. Now the genocide takes the form of slave labor and starvation. The distinguished archaeologist was charged with "subversion," which covers any opposition to veteran despot Stroessner.

Footnote: The US. embassy in Paraguay has made informal inquiries about the case.

Stopping the Reds in Italy

WASHINGTON — The question of whether or not the United States should finance political parties abroad through the CIA doesn't seem to be a problem to the Administration. The only debate is about what parties should receive the money. Rumor has it that the CIA plans to give $6 million to the Christian Democrats in Italy to make sure the Communists don't get elected. But there are some people in Washington who feel that now that the cat is out of the bag, the contribution could be counterproductive.

Buchwald

One of them is my friend Giulio Machiavelli who knows the political situation in Italy as well as anybody.

"I think we should give money to a political party in Italy only if we're certain it will produce results."

"You mean to the Christian democrats?" I said.

"No, I mean to the Italian Communist Party."

"Have you gone mad?" I said to Machiavelli. "Why would we give money to the Italian Communist Party?"

"It's very simple. If the CIA hands over the funds to the Italian Communist Party, everyone will say the Communists in Italy work for the CIA and the center parties will win the election."

"But that's Machiavellian," I told my friend. "The American people would never stand for it."

"Neither would the Italians," Machiavelli said. "Look, right now every political party but the Communists are tainted in Italy because it is widely believed their politicians are on the CIA payroll. The only way we can reverse this is by putting the Communists on the payroll and cutting off everyone else."

"But you can't cut off non-Communist politicians from CIA funds," I protested. "The Right, the Center and the Non-Communist Left depend on that money for their own personal expenses. They have villas to pay off, new cars to buy, Swiss bank accounts to keep up. You can't take money out of their pockets just to defeat the Communists."

"Ah, but that's just the point," Machiavelli said. "They won't be cut off. When the Soviets find out the CIA is supporting the Communist Party in Italy, the KGB will have no choice but to support the Christian Democrats. If we're to believe our government, the Soviets pour in a lot more money for an election in a foreign country than the Americans do and, therefore, the Christian Democrats will have more funds to salt away for themselves than when they were financed by the CIA."

"It's an interesting proposal," I said. "But what happens if the CIA financing is so successful the Communists win in Italy?"

"There is very little chance of that happening. In almost all cases whichever side the CIA supports in an election loses. But we must make sure that there is a great deal of publicity that the Communists in Italy are being financed by the Central Intelligence Agency."

"How would you publicize something like that?"

"We'd get Director William Colby to brief a congressional watchdog committee in secret session that the CIA was going to give $6 million to the Italian Communist Party. He would make them all swear that they wouldn't reveal a word of it to anyone.

"Five minutes after the briefing was over, every newspaper bureau in Washington would know about it. The day after the story was printed the White House would deny it. As soon as the denial came out, everyone in Italy would believe it was true."

"It's brilliant," I told Machiavelli. "But if the CIA starts supporting Communist parties in other countries, won't it hurt detente?"

"It might," he replied, "but what better way to show the Soviets that we mean business?"

Conservative view

Reagan would deflate swollen government

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Comparisons, they say, are odious, and Ronald Reagan finds himself these days in the midst of a comparison that is odious almost beyond the bearing. He is being compared to George McGovern. It is the most unkindest cut of all.

Kilpatrick

Four years ago this month, at the very outset of his serious campaign, McGovern unveiled a plan of welfare reform. The general idea was to give every man, woman and child in the country, regardless of income, an annual grant of $1,000. He proposed these "demogrants," as they came to be called, in place of basic welfare payments. He proposed to pay for the grants through a soak-the-rich plan of tax increases. McGovern trotted out these modest proposals, and the roof fell in. He never got off the defensive thereafter.

Reagan, for his part, made a speech last September before the Chicago Executive Club, in which he proposed "nothing less than a systematic transfer of authority and resources to the states — a program of creative federalism for America's third century." Specifically, Reagan recommended that some $90 billion in federal programs be phased out. If this were done, he said, the federal budget could be balanced and federal taxes could be cut by $23 billion a year.

Reagan's foes, who seem to be legion, have clutched this proposal lovingly to their breasts. They are fetched by it. They profess never to have seen so beautiful a blunder. They cannot get enough of it. They speak of it incessantly. And Reagan, to his credit, has whetted their passion by spelling out, chapter and verse, precisely where he would make the $90 billion cuts.

McGovern's baby and Reagan's baby have this much in common: Both may be seen as the products of men with ideas. The difference is this: McGovern's idea was basically screwy. Reagan's idea is basically sound.

Federal spending, let us face it, is out of hand. With the best will in the world, neither Congress nor the White House can bring these monstrous outlays under control. The figures are literally beyond comprehension: The mind of man is incapable of comprehending the expenditure of more than a billion dollars a day. Recurring deficits — staggering deficits — have become an inflationary way of life. The fiscal cancer cries out for surgical relief.

And the governmental crisis is not merely a fiscal crisis. In the broadest sense, we face a political and philosophical crisis also. The old constitutional system, relying upon federalism and the separation of powers, is gasping for survival. Today the federal hand is everywhere; the constraints, the regimentation, the endless rules and regulations of executive agencies spread across the whole of society. We are smothering in benevolence.

Reagan's approach is truly conservative. In the language of George Mason, he proposes that we "recur to fundamentals." Let us systematically seek to restore those precepts of state and local reponsibility that were among the foundation stones of our Republic. Let us undertake to confine the national government to those functions that are plainly national in scope; as for the rest, let us keep government close to the people governed.

Toward these wholesome ends, Reagan proposes, for example, gradually to abolish some $13.7 billion in federal aid to education. His critics are aghast. They are incredulous. Their scorn is boundless. But this is, of course, what ought to be done. He would not touch Social Security or Medicare, but he would abolish $32 billion in other health and welfare programs. Why not? The programs are riddled with incompetence and waste. He would knock out nearly a billion in federal grants for local law enforcement. Splendid! Health, education, welfare and law enforcement ought not to be federal responsibilities. These services ought rather to benefit from the variety and prudence of administration state-by-state.

Reagan errs, in my view, in proposing also to purge certain federal programs in transportation and postal services. These are extensions of powers plainly delegated to the United States government under the Constitution. Other recommendations are subject to similar challenge, and the proposal as a whole is politically unrealistic. A Democratic Congress never on this earth would go along. But the concept makes sense. If Reagan is nuts, so were the Founding Fathers.

Cline wins it for S-C with no time remaining

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

In St. Louis they call them the Cardiac Cards; in motorcycle racing they call them "nervous novices." But in Sedalia, David Porter is just happy to call it a victory — even if it was by only one point.

Sedalia Smith-Cotton recorded its second victory of the Central Missouri Conference season Friday night at home, nipping Jefferson City 56-55.

Smith-Cotton built at 13-point lead in the second quarter and held on for the win, which was recorded by senior guard "Petey" Cline with no time left on the clock.

With three seconds to go and the score deadlocked, the Tigers called a hasty time out after a Jefferson City turnover.

David Porter, who now has seen his team win both of their CMC battles by the scant margin of one point, went to the drawing board and pulled out what was to be the deciding play.

When action resumed, senior forward Pete Fiene was set to trigger the ball inbounds beneath the Jays' basket. The Jays, who have lost four of their five games by only one point, were pressing. The play was set. Cline was to break deep toward the Tigers' bucket. He did and hauled in Fiene's long inbounds pass dribbled twice and went up for the layup just as the buzzer sounded. The ball rolled off the rim, but Cline was fouled by Steve Jambor.

Cline stepped to the line for what could have been a two-shot foul. He took a deep breath, fired and dropped the ball through for the winning point.

Mobbed by his teammates and fans, Cline didn't have a chance for his other shot. It didn't matter, the Tigers didn't need it.

"I don't know," said Cline after the game when asked why he didn't take the other shot. "The ref took the ball and we didn't need the point anyway," added the 6-1 senior guard.

Smith-Cotton closed in on the .500 mark with the win. The Tigers now stand at 4-6 overall, going into last night's home, non-conference game against Independence Truman in the Fine Arts and Physical Education Building.

Jefferson City is now 0-2 in CMC action and 6-5 overall. The Jays' other conference loss was at the hands of Hannibal, 63-62, the same score the Tigers pinned on Hannibal in overtime last week.

"We are continuing to show improvement," said Porter, who is in his second year as the Tigers' head coach. "We are playing more consistent ... especially in the last three games."

Smith-Cotton played highly-talented Raytown South within two points last Saturday after upending Hannibal the night before.

The Tigers scored five unanswered points in the last two minutes of the first period to take a 12-8 lead.

They continued their pace in the second quarter and looked as if they were on their way to an easy victory. With 3:41 to go in the first half, Joe Fischer, who came in to spell Pete Fiene a minute earlier, gave the Tigers a 27-14 lead.

The Jays managed to close the gap to eight, 31-23, by the intermission.

Steadily Jefferson City whittled away at the Tigers' lead, cashing in at the free throw line and converting some baskets on turnovers off their press. The press didn't bother the Tigers in the first half, but it started taking its toll in the third and fourth quarters.

Gary Gonder and Ken Brooks tossed in two free throws apiece in the final 20 seconds of the third quarter, trimming the Tigers' lead to 44-41 as play moved to the final period.

The Tigers held the lead until 1:46 was left in the game, when Brooks hit a pair of charity tosses after being fouled by Pete Fiene. That gave the Jays a 53-52 margin. It was the first time they had led since early in the contest.

Cline tied it, 53-all, with a charity with 1:20 to go, but Rick Prosser countered from the field for the Jays at 1:01.

Prosser fouled Skip McGuire, who turned in his third straight strong effort in the post for the Tigers, with 38 seconds to go. McGuire sank the first and earned the bonus. That also found its mark and the game was deadlocked again.

Jefferson City inbounded the ball and quickly called time out to set up one last play.

They worked the ball down to three seconds, but were whistled for a lane violation and the ball went over to the Tigers, setting the stage for the dramatic finish.

S-C got a balanced effort in the scoring department from the two Fiene's and McGuire. Pete Fiene scored 14 for team honors, while twin brother Pat tossed in 13. McGuire added 12.

In the sophomore game, Smith-Cotton was down 17-5 at one point in the first half, but rubbed out the lead and went on to win, 39-34.

Following last night's non-conference action with Truman, the Tigers head for Kansas City this week for the Kansas City Center Tournament.

Sacred Heart can't hold lead; tumble to St. John's, 51-46

By RON HIGGINS
Staff Sports Writer

The St. John's Knights speared the Sacred Heart Gremlins here Friday night 51-46.

After claiming the lead through the first half, the Gremlins had trouble penetrating the Knights' zone in the final half and the lead vanished.

In the opening quarter and the score tied at 4-4, Sacred Heart went on a seven-point rampage. The Gremlins claimed a 17-14 edge by the end of the first period.

In the first two minutes of the second period, the Gremlins cushioned their lead, only to lose it later.

By the close of the first half, the Gremlin margin was cut to 24-22.

Midway through the third period, the charging Knights claimed a 28-26 advantage.

After a see-saw battle in the latter stages of the quarter, the Knights held a 36-33 lead and never trailed from that point on.

In the final quarter, the Knights fought their way to a seven-point cushion.

After cutting their deficit to two, the Gremlins failed to hold off the Knights in the last minute of the contest.

The Gremlin attack ran into trouble against the Knight's zone defense.

"Their zone was giving us trouble," said a disappointed Tom Jennewein. "Their zone defense was just better than our zone offense."

Jennewein said his team tried a lot of different things and most of them worked, but he said if they had worked better, the Gremlins could have won.

With 3:50 remaining in the contest, the Gremlins tied the Knights at 43-43.

Seconds later, Howard Simon put Sacred Heart in the lead to stay, and the Gremlins' dramatic come-back earned them a 50-47 victory.

Smithton upends Stover Bulldogs

STOVER — Smithton got revenge for a loss here a week ago to Stover in Kaysinger Conference play, defeating the host Bulldogs, 43-41, in the semifinals of the Stover Invitational Basketball Tournament Friday night.

The victory, which avenged an 86-58 Kaysinger loss to Stover last week, moved the Tigers into the finals of the tournament here last night against Tuscumbia.

In Friday's other action, Cole Camp earned a berth in the consolation game with a 79-46 win over Northwest (Hughesville).

Stover's loss in the nip-and-tuck battle against Smithton, was only the second of the year for the Bulldogs. Stover was riding the crest of an 11-game winning streak before the setback. Stover's only other loss was against Lincoln in the semifinals of the Kaysinger Conference Tournament in Lincoln early in the season.

Smithton, behind at the half, 27-23, took a 35-33 lead into the fourth quarter and held off the Bulldogs.

Smithton was outscored from the field (20-17), but cashed in at the free throw line. The Tigers converted nine shots, while the Bulldogs got only one down.

Tom Dale, who missed more than a quarter of action due to fouls, led Stover with 17 points. Greg Siegel also scored 17 to earn a share of game honors for Smithton.

Cole Camp bolted to a 42-22 lead at the half and had an easy trip into last night's consolation game against Lincoln.

Five Cole Camp players, led by Bill Wilken, reached double figures. Wilken tossed in 13. Steve Schroeder of Northwest captured game honors with 17.

Scoring

Cole Camp (79) — Wilken 13, Logan 12, Kyle 12, Harms 11, Gooch 10, Williams 8, Case 7, Duncan 4, Schroeder 2.

Northwest (46) — Schroeder 17, Mackesty 9, Bennett 8, Werneke 6, Fowler 4, Reid 2.

Maltbie leads Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Roger Maltbie, scrambling desperately in the growing pressure of the third round, clung to a one stroke lead Saturday while gusty winds and a strange lack of motivation cost Johnny Miller any hope of another victory in the $200,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Maltbie, a two-tournament winner as the 1975 Rookie of the Year, managed a hard-won 70, one under par on the 6,726 yard Phoenix Country Club course. He had a 54-hole total of 200, 13 under par.

Maltbie had to score a two-putt birdie four on the final hole to hold off the surprising threat of Bob Gilder, a rookie from nearby Arizona State.

Gilder fashioned a solid, five-under-par 66 in the bright, warm sunshine and was just one shot back at 201 going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Miller, winner of five consecutive Arizona events, appeared out of it after a 72 left him eight shots back at 208.

"I really don't care," Miller shrugged. "It had to happen sometime. I'm almost relieved it's over.

"I just wasn't very motivated out there. I wasn't gritting my teeth and going at it. I wanted to at least stay close, but now I'm not even in contention. Even a round in the very low 60s tomorrow wouldn't do it."

The par three holes were his downfall. He played them four over par, including a double bogey five on the eighth. Miller missed the green to the left, chipped on and three-putted from eight feet.

Jim Colbert shot a 70 and was in fourth place at 203. Jim Simons had a 66 and was next at 204.

Lanny Wadkins, a three-time runner-up in this event; Ben Crenshaw and Hale Irwin were at 205. Wadkins had a 66 despite a double bogey seven on the final hole; Irwin matched par 71, and Crenshaw had a 68.

Maltbie, a chipper, jaunty 24-year-old who has a habit of sticking his tongue out at putts that refuse to fall, had an erratic round that included five birdies and four bogeys.

Maltbie, who led through the first two rounds, held the top spot throughout the day despite almost constant challenges from Trevino, Irwin and the surprising Gilder, a look-alike for former basketball star Jerry West who was serving as a television commentator for this event.

Steelers favored to win Super Bowl

MIAMI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers remained seven-point favorite to capture their second straight Super Bowl championship from the upstart Dallas Cowboys Saturday in good weather before a capacity crowd of 82,000 at the Orange Bowl.

The teams completed a week of practice Saturday with their first look at the field. Each worked out on the tattered pollyturf surface which is to be replaced by natural grass following this game. Most of the work Saturday by both teams was on kicking.

The U.S. Weather Service put out a special Super Bowl forecast calling for sunny skies, tempature in the low 60s and northerly winds of up to 15 miles per hour for the 2:10 p.m., EST, kickoff.

Tickets were virtually impossible to obtain in the hours before the game. Scalpers were asking well over $100 for a $20 ticket, and this resort town was swelled with tourists on hand for the game that has become an American sports extravaganza in the decade since it began.

Dallas fans gathered for a pep rally at a Miami Beach hotel Saturday, most of them wearing blue cowboy hats with a giant "D" on the front. Steeler fans also jammed the strip of plush hotels, gaining momentum as they awaited the big game.

Both teams were at a fever pitch. Coaches Tom Landry of the Cowboys and Chuck Noll of the Steelers discribed their week's work here as hard-hitting. There was even a brief show of temper in the Pittsburgh camp between linebacker Jack Lambert and running back Rocky Bleier.

Lambert, beaten on a couple of plays by Bleier, reportedly told the running back Wednesday it wouldn't happen again. Bleier then belted his teammate with a forearm on the next play and Lambert pretended to be knocked out. Then, Lambert charged up behind Bleier and the two laughed off the incident.

"It was nothing," said Lambert. "There are no hard feelings."

As the teams awaited the kickoff fans hoped this game would reverse the Super Bowl trend of rather dull, conservative contests.

Hank Stram ... with a new job

Stram to become a Saint

MIAMI (AP) — Hank Stram, the dapper little man fired one year ago as coach of the Kanas City Chiefs, will be named coach of the New Orleans Saints next Tuesday.

Sources both in and out of the National Football League confirmed the appointment Saturday.

Stram, 53, will succeed Ernie Hefferle, who was named New Orleans' interim coach midway during the 1975 season after John North was fired by Saints' owner John Mecom.

It is believed Stram will receive a multi-year contract worth at least $100,000 a year. It also is understood that when he retires as the Saints' coach, he will become their general manager, a post now occupied by one-time astronaut Dick Gordon.

New Orleans wound up the 1975 season last in the National Football Conference West at 2-12, the worst record in the NFC and matching San Diego for the poorest mark in the league.

Stram's first head coaching job came with the Dallas Texans when the American Football League was born in 1960. Three years later, the team, unable to successfully compete at the box office with the rival Dallas Cowboys of the NFL, pulled up stakes, moved to Kansas City and was renamed the Chiefs.

There, Stram became a sideline fixture, a modern-day Napolean strutting back and forth in front of the bench, wearing a natty vest and blazer and clutching an ever-present rolled-up game plan in his fist.

He guided the Chiefs into Super Bowl I, but they lost to Green Bay. Three years later, in Super Bowl IV, Kansas City returned and registered a stunning upset, beating the Minnesota Vikings 23-7. It was the last Super Bowl between the rival leagues. The next year they were merged into the NFL's current two-conference, six-division structure.

Kansas City's wide-open, varied attack against Minnesota was hailed as "The offense of the '70s." But less than halfway into the decade, age and more sophisticated defenses caught up with the Chiefs, they, faded out of championship contention and, on Dec. 27, 1974, Stram was fired by team owner Lamar Hunt.

He turned to television, becoming a member of CBS' team of sportscasters at NFL games. But he said he would give that job a one-year trial before deciding whether to return to coaching, a decision he has now made.

Stram began his coaching career in the college ranks as an assistant at Purdue, Notre Dame, Southern Methodist and the University of Miami before joining the pros and becoming the eight-winningest coach in NFL history with 124 victories with the Chiefs.

East meets West in Japan Bowl

TOKYO (AP) — For the first time, Japanese sports fans will see genuine American football—the way it's played in the United States—when the East-West American collegiate All-Stars meet in the Japan Bowl Sunday.

It will be the first U.S. collegiate football game played on foreign soil between squads composed entirely of American players.

Commemorating America's bicentennial, the game is sanctioned by the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association.

It is being co-sponsored by the American Football Association of Japan and the Nippon sports newspaper and is supported by the U.S. Embassy in Japan.

The game, which will be televised in Japan, will start at 1 p.m. or 11 p.m. EST Saturday in the United States. It will be played at the 80,000-seat Olympic Stadium in the heart of Tokyo and is expected to attract between 50,000 and 55,000 spectators.

College teams from the United States have played in Japan in the past against local all-stars but because of the size, skill and technique of the Japanese players, they were not typical football games.

Three Japanese players have been named to join each the East and West teams for the Japan Bowl.

Mike Pruitt of Purdue and Sonny Collins of Kentucky will head the East squad and the West squad will be lead by All-Americans Chuck Muncie of California and John Sciarra of UCLA.

Pruitt and Collins, both running backs, led the East team to a 16-0 victory over the West in the Hula Bowl in Honolulu Jan. 10.

Sciarra, a quarterback, was the hero of the UCL's stunning Rose Bowl victory over the Ohio State.

The game will also see two pairs of brothers in action. The Selmon brothers—Dewey and Leroy, defensive linemen from Oklahoma—will play for the West. North Carolina State quarterback Dave Buckey will be passing to his brother Don, a wide receiver, for the East.

Other East team members include Tom Rafferty of Penn State, Randy Johnson of Georgia, Denis Lick of Wisconsin, Bennie Cunningham of Clemson, Brian Baschnagle of Ohio State, Ray Preston of Syracuse, Tim Fox of Ohio State and Greg Buttle of Penn State.

Also on the West team are Bob Simmons of Texas, Henry Marshall of Missouri, Steve Rivera of California, Joe Washington of Oklahoma, Randy Cross of UCLA, Bob Martin of Nebraska, Ed Simonini of Texas A&M, Mike Haynes of Arizona State and Danny Reese of Southern California.

Hoosiers annihilate Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Top-ranked Indiana, getting a 27 points from All-American Scott May, defeated Illinois 83-55 Saturday for its 24th straight Big Ten basketball victory.

The victory also was the 44th straight regular season victory for the Hoosiers who upped their record to 14-0 and 5-0 in the conference.

Illinois jumped to quick leads of 4-0 and 6-2 before the polished Hoosiers went to work and scored 10 straight points, six of them by center Kent Benson, to take a 12-6 lead and the rout was on.

Indiana, getting 15 points from Tom Abernethy in the first half, gradually pulled away to a 45-28 halftime lead.

Illinois chopped the 17-point deficit to 13 points in the opening minutes of the second half but Benson, May and Jim Crews hit with unerring consistency as the Hoosiers built leads of 25 points and more while hitting at a near 60 per cent clip.

After the Hoosiers had pulled ahead 69-40 midway in the second half, Coach Bobby Knight substituted freely but it didn't help the Illini, who suffered their first loss of the season at home.

Rich Adams led Illinois with 16 points and Nate Williams added 11. Audie Matthews and Ken Ferdinand chipped in with eight points each. The loss was Illinois' fifth of the season against nine victories and left the Illini with a 2-3 record in the Big Ten.

'Discount' Olympics costs up

INNSBRUCK, Austria (ap) — Costs of staging the 1976 "discount" Winter Olympics have risen to $148 million, Karl Heinz Klee, general secretary of the Organizing Committee, said Saturday.

While substantially less expensive than the estimated $1.2 billion dollars being spent for the 1976 Montreal Summer Olympics, the Innsbruck Games Feb. 4-15 will still be four times more costly than originaly planned, press reports say.

Most of the higher cost — $111 million — have financed improvements around Innsbruck such as a super highway, power plant and the high rise Olympic village which will help solve the city's chronic housing shortage after the Games, Klee said.

"Because of the Games, we can finance these necessary improvements five or more years ahead of schedule," the genial 46-year-old Innsbruck lawyer said.

But he stressed that the organizers were keeping their pledge to stage no-frill "simple games" using basically the same sports facilities that were created for the 1964 Innsbruck Winter Olympics.

But with the games less than three weeks away, some voices are warning of major financial problems ahead for this Tyrolian Alpine city of 115,000 residents when the Olympic euphoria is over.

Klammer tops racers

MORZINE, France (AP) — Franz Klammer, Austria's Olympic gold medal hopeful, led a virtual Austrian sweep of the top places in a downhill ski race Saturday and edged slalom specialist Ingemar Stenmark out of first place in the World Cup standings.

It was the 22-year-old Austrian star's third World Cup downhill victory of the season and made him the man to beat in the event of next month's Winter Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria.

But with Stenmark trailing him by only five points in the standings and only two downhill races remaining in the current season against a total of seven slaloms and giant slaloms, a Cup victory for Klammer was far from assured. Klammer still has to earn a single point in a slalom or giant slalom this season.

Switzerland's Bernhard Russi, downhill gold medalist at the 1972 Sapporo Olympics, took second place in the race and was the only non-Austrian to break into the top five finishers. Klammer flashed down the icy, 3,080-meter course, with a vertical drop of 885 meters, in 1 minute, 54.24 seconds. Russi finished in 1:54.33.

Three Austrians who, with Klammer, are virtually certain to be selected for Austria's Olympic downhill team, took third, fourth and fifth place. They were Anton Steiner, a 17-year-old in his second international racing season, was timed in 1:54.88, followed by Klaus Eberhard, 1:55.55, and Werner Grissman, 1:55.73.

Another Swiss, Philippe Roux, was sixth in 1:55.97, and Patrice Pellat-Finet of France was seventh in 1:56.14, marking the first time this season a French skier as placed among the top 10 in a World Cup downhill.

Karl Anderson, of Greene, Maine, was the best-placed American. He finished 11th in 1:56.67 and was narrowly edged out of a World Cup point for 10th place by low-seeded Swiss Martin Berthod, timed in 1:56.59.

Versailles tops 'Cats in non-loop

VERSAILLES — Versailles jumped to an early lead and toppled Warsaw in non-conference basketball play Friday night, 59-32.

Ken Chamberlain poured in 21 points and Barry Laurie added 14 to pace the Tigers to the victory.

Versailles led by four at the end of the first period and extended the margin to 31-20 at the intermission enroute to the win.

Kevin Swearngin scored 14 points for the Warsaw Wildcats.

Scoring

Versailles (59) — Chuck Campbell 12, Kent Chamberlain 21, Terry Silvey 2, Barry Laurie 14, Calvin Woods 4, Rick Vogt 6.

Warsaw (32) — Steve Spencer 6, Kevin Swearngin 14, Lonnie Brown 8, Lanny Greer 4.

In the main event, a lumberjack match between Ed Wiskowski and the Candy Man has been booked.

Jerry Oates and Bob Brown square off in the semifinal, while bouts between Mike George and Dutch Mantel, and Ted Oates and Ron Bass hold down the other events on the card.

The opening match is scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

MU Tigers rout KU

COLUMBIA (AP) — Willie Smith, Stan Ray and Jim Kennedy combined for 70 points Saturday night as Missouri ran away from Kansas, 99-69, in the Big Eight Conference opener for both squads.

The 30-point margin was Missouri's largest ever in a Tiger-Jayhawk game played in Columbia, and extended Missouri's homecourt winning streak to 21.

Missouri scored eight straight points late in the first half for a 43-27 edge, the Tigers' best lead in the opening half. The foulplagued Jayhawks played Missouri even in field goals for the half, but Missouri hit 17 of 21 free throws to account for its lead.

Kansas won the battle of the boards in the opening half, but quickly lost its height advantage when 7-foot Paul Mokeski and 6-10 Ken Koenigs fouled out in the first five minutes of the second half.

Promoter Karras, 75, dies Friday

ST. JOSEPH — Famed promoter Gust Karras died here at the Methodist Medical Center Friday.

Karras, 75, promoted professional wrestling shows here for more than 40 years. He also staged regular, weekly matches in Kansas City, Kansas City, Kan., and Sedalia, and booked a number of others in many Midwestern cities.

Last week, Karras' promotion of the Harlem Globetrotters in Kansas City's Kemper Arena drew a packed house of more than 17,200 spectators.

He was born in Greece and came here 45 years ago.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at Meirhoffer-Fleeman Funeral Home in St. Joseph. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery here.

Survivors include his wife, Goldie; a daughter, Mrs. James Quinn of St. Joseph; one son, Dr. William Karras of California; two sisters and three brothers all of Athens, Greece.

S-C wins another squeaker

By RON HIGGINS
Staff Sports Writer

After sinking a free throw Friday night to win a big game for the Tigers, Petey Cline returned Saturday night in the hero role for Smith-Cotton in a 41-40 win over Truman High School, Kansas City.

With the Tigers trailing the Patriots 41-39 and one second showing on the clock, Cline went to the free throw line to attempt a pressure packed one-and-one charity toss.

Cline's first conversion tied the score at 40 all.

Still, Petey had the possible winning shot remaining and again he converted for the victory.

Truman controlled the tip at the start of the contest and moved downcourt only to have Cline steal the ball for Smith-Cotton. The Tigers couldn't convert the opportunity and failed to get on the board first.

McGuire put the Tigers ahead 13-12 with a short bank shot with a minute remaining in the first quarter.

At the close of the first quarter, Smith-Cotton clung to its one point, 13-12 lead.

At the two minute mark remaining in the opening half, the Tigers held their grasp to a 25-21 advantage.

Truman then closed in on the Tigers and forced the Bengals to share the lead at the half, 28-28.

Throughout most of the third quarter, the score remained knotted until Doug Slagel untied he knot with 3:30 remaining in the opening period of the second half.

Down 35-34, the Patriots moved tln th nloor and put on a stall offense and used this strategy until Petey Cline used his quickness and stole the ball with 21 seconds remaining in the quarter. Cline went all the way for an easy lay-up and gave the roaring Tigers a 37-34 cushion at the start of the tense final period of play.

Time had elapsed to 17 seconds when Khun, fouled out giving the ball to the Tigers under their own bucket.

After throwing the ball into play, Cline got tied up with a Truman player and both went to the circle nearest the Tiger bucket to jump.

After controlling the tip, the Tigers were making violent efforts to get free to shoot, but in the act, Petey Cline was fouled and he went to the free throw line to do his thing with one second remaining.

In a jubilant shower room, Cline was asked if he felt the pressure when he went to the free throw line.

"YEAH," he reponded, adding, "We just had to win!"

Coach Dave Porter of the Tigers praised not only his team, but also the fans for giving their support.

"As long as we keep winning 'em by one, I'm all right," said a breathless Tiger coach.

Coach Porter said the kids seem to get better with every game. "We've been pressured all year long," he said. "The kids are gaining their confidence in breaking the press."

Porter praised his bench for turning in an excellent performance aganst the Patriots, mentioning forward Joe Fischer and David Braverman. Coach Porter gives much credit to the junior varsity coaches for bringing these boys up into the system.

Truman (40) — Mike Royle 13, Steve Khan 9, Greg Kirk 6, Lance Haggard 9, Rick Kundee 4.

Herzog, Splittorff head baseball caravan here

Complete plans and personalities have been announced for the upcoming Kansas City Royals Carvan, which will be in Sedalia Feb. 5.

The Caravan makes its first stop here at an assembly at Sacred Heart High School, beginning at 10:15 a.m. The other stop will be at the noon Kiwanis luncheon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Kansas City Royals manager Whitey Herzog and 28-year-old southpaw hurler Paul Splittorff will accompany press officials on the stop here.

Herzog was named the Royals' manager on July 24 last season replacing Jack McKeon. He managed the club to the best mark in major league baseball history in Kansas City. The Royals finished the season 20 games above .500 (91-71). Under Herzog, the Royals placed .621 winning 41 and losing only 25.

Splittorff has been one of the Royals' most consistent pitchers over the past five seasons. He ranks No. 1 with his 62 career victories on the all-time Royals' pitching list. Splittorff became the first pitcher in Kansas City history to have a 20-game winning season. That came in 1973 when he posted a mark of 20-11.

Also on Feb. 5, the Royals Caravan will be at Warrensburg and Whiteman Air Force Base. The following day, the Royals will be in Warsaw.

Score corrected

It was incorrectly reported in Friday's Democrat and Saturday's Capital that Warsaw defeated Sedalia Sacred Heart in junior high school basketball action Thursday, 25-11.

The correct score should have been 42-25.

Bulletin

STOVER — The Smithton Tigers clinched the Stover Invitational here Saturday night by defeating the Tuscumbia Lions 57-55 in the championship encounter.

The Stover Bulldogs used a 22 point fourth quarter to claim third place and a 72-60 victory over the Green Ridge Tigers.

In the consolation contest, the Cole Camp Bluebirds sailed past the Lincoln Cardinals 58-49. With the score clad at 42 at the end of the third period, Cole Camp scored 16 points to Lincoln's 7 to win the game.

The International Bridge Assn. honored Julius Rosenblum, president of the World Bridge Federation, as its bridge man of the year for his judicious and diplomatic handling of the "Bermuda Crisis" of the 1975 championships and for his long continuing work on behalf of world bridge relationships.

Julius, who has held every possible bridge office, has also found time to be a top player. Maybe not at the very top, but certainly able to hold his own in any company.

He sat West some years ago in an important match. His spade opening was sound indeed, but in the system he was using his partner's jump to three hearts was preemptive. So Julius sold out to South's five-club bid.

An unthinking player would have opened the king of spades. But Julius reasoned quite properly that dummy would be short in spades and it was up to Julius to stop as many ruffs as he possibly could. So Julius led a small trump.

Later on, he got to lead a second trump. The unfortunate declarer could only get to ruff two spades and was one down.

Ask the Jacobys

The answer is that he certainly did. The year was 1925 and he did such a good job that the laws of the game have not changed greatly from his first ones.

'Crash parts' mean prices must go up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Higher prices for "crash parts" are forcing Missouri motorists to pay higher auto insurance premiums, according to state officials and industry spokesmen.

"We've definitely had more premium increases in the last 12 month period in the last 10 years," said Bob Maddox, supervisor of the automobile and workmen's compensation section of the Division of Insurance.

The state's five largest auto insurors — State Farm Mutual, MFA, Allstate, Farmers Insurance Co. and American Family Mutual —all increased their auto insurance rates last year, according to Maddox.

He said that although the number of accidents has not increased significantly, the cost of "crash parts" has.

He said the cost of parts over the past five years has gone up 61 per cent, although the inflation rate was about half that amount over the same period.

The insurance company official's claim was supported by Don Dulle, president of Jefferson Bond and Frame Works, Inc., of Jefferson City.

"Parts increases are the big thing. The cost of paint and thinner has trippled in the last year and a half," he said.

According to Dulle, a fender for a 1973 Buick Lasabre was priced at $88.15 in January of that year, but if that same part needed replacing last November, it would cost $119.

"Fifty-five gallons of paint thinner cost $44 two years ago, now it is up to $110," Dulle said.

Dugan said the frequency of accidents decreased in 1974 "because of the energy crisis, but in 1975 it crept back up and we're now at about the same levels we were experiencing before the energy shortage.

Statistics supplied by the Department of Public Safety showed there were 139,300 accidents in Missouri during the first 11 months of 1975, while during the same period a year earlier, there were 137,648 auto mishaps.

Is There a Formula for Success?
The Answer Is Yes!
Through both boom and recession years, our formula has worked. The earnings above are typical, not exceptional. And dozens of our people in sales win advancement, and income of $40,000 to $50,000.
You can quality:
- 21 years or older
- High school or better
- Sportsminded
- Ambitious

We're a half century old organization with annual income near a quarter billion dollars a year. We are TOP RATED in our industry.
We offer two weeks training in St. Louis, $1,000 a month guarantee, proven sales method, and most of your day spent selling. Not "prospecting."
You can advance faster in sales. Your commissions build year by year. We keep training you to move up. No limit on how fast or far you can progress.

Market has its best week ever

NEW YORK (AP) — Record trading volume and a continuing rally brought a lot of attention to the stock market this past week, but where the money was coming from remained unclear.

The market's turbulent activity set those who analyze it to debating who was doing all the buying and selling, and why.

"I don't think the public is participating in the market as heavily as the volume would indicate. But they're back in, asking questions," said Henry Perrine, manager of an E.F. Hutton office here.

Whether they were buying stock or not,the public was still interested enough to crowd into brokerage houses to watch electronic tickers record each stock transaction.

Perrine said the number of visitors to his office swelled as the market's pace picked up steam during the week.

There were nearly as many opinions on who was causing the activity as there are security analysts, but the number of trades in blocks of thousands of shares of a particular stock showed that large institutions, such as life insurance companies and banks, were actively in the market.

The New York Stock Exchange set a daily volume record Thursday, when 38.45 million shares were traded. The weekly volume record of 145.68 million shares set in the last week of January last year was also eclipsed by the week's 159.69 million shares traded.

Humanizing police makes show popular

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Why is it that one cop show is a big hit while another one falls fat on its badge?

One reason, Earl Holliman believes, is that the successful show humanizes its cops. The public likes to get to know the stars, or at least the characters they portray. On some shows, that happens. On others — the flops — it doesn't.

Holliman is Angie Dickinson's co-star on NBC's hit series, Police Woman. And he thinks that the secret of their success if that the leads on that show come across as human beings, with good and bad features, with total personalities.

"I'm proud of our show," Holliman says. "And I'm particularly proud of the fact that we all come across as people. And I'm also proud that many cops like us."

He believes that shows like his are helping to end an ugly era in America. He believes that because some shows, such as Police Woman, portray the police as normal people, the public is coming around to the idea that cops are not "pigs," but average Joes.

"I have a lot of policeman friends," Holliman says, "and they tell me that's what's happening. We're humanizing cops and they say that, on the street, they're being treated as people and they hear less and less about pigs. Which is great, I think. TV can do some good, after all."

Holliman says he got to know cops closely early in his career in Hollywood. Once, he was doing a guest shot on Raymond Burr's old Ironside series. And, he says, a few hotshot motorcycle cops were hanging around, serving as technical advisers.

"At the end of a few days of shooting," Holliman says, "we had become friends. And they invited me to a party. There were three of them. They had all been divorced and were living in an apartment together. Each one had his own room — and each room was totally different, reflecting the three separate personalities of the three men.

"That taught me, right then, that cops were human, too, and that each cop is an individual, like each actor."

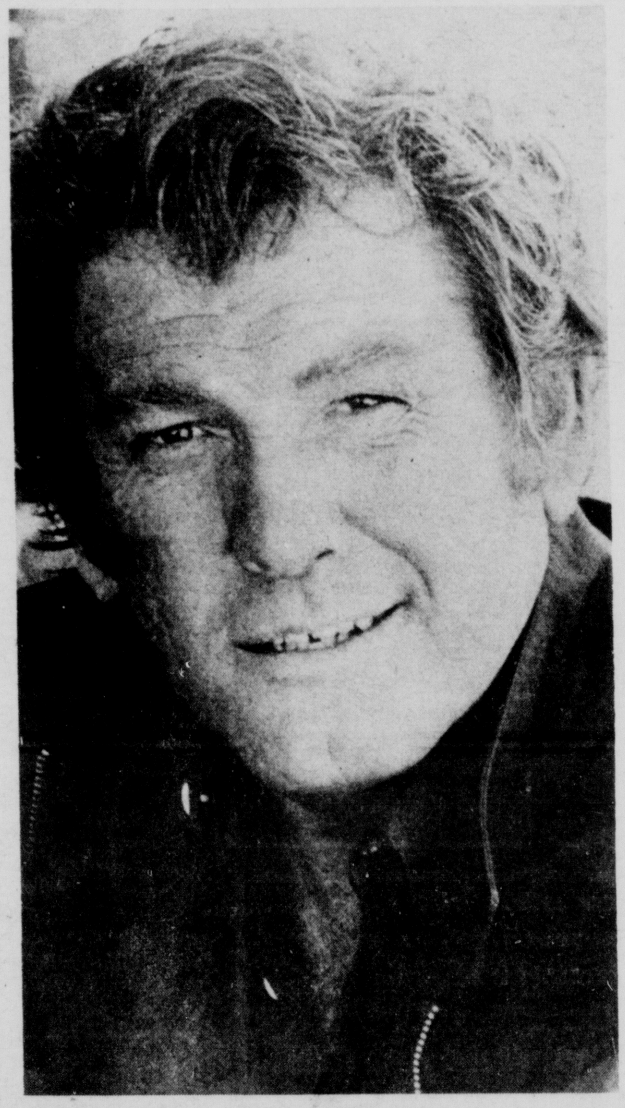
Some criticism has been levelled at Police Woman, on the grounds that Angie Dickinson is far too beautiful to be your average police lady. Holliman disagrees.

"I've met a few police women," he sayd, "who are just as beautiful as she is, or at least they're in the same league. And just as efficient.

"Of course, there is one thing about our show you have to realize. And that's that we have to take a lot of dramatic license, for the sake of our stories. If we followed the way cops really work, the show would be pretty dull.

"Actually, if a real police woman got herself into jeopardy each week, the way Pepper (Angie) does, she'd be a very bad officer. Real police women are supposed to stay out of trouble, to avoid being in jeopardy.

"But if she was never in any trouble, they'd be no show."



Earl Holliman

SUNDAY, JAN. 18

(CBS) — The NFL Today is a live pre-Super Bowl program broadcast from a boat en route to the Orange Bowl. Aboard as commentators are Brent Musburger, Irv Cross and Phyllis George.

TV Scout Reports

Tony Martin and Cyd Charisse spent a morning in San Clemente recently with their old friend, former President Richard Nixon. They tell me that Nixon was in good spirits, although complaining about lack of funds (he only served them coffee).

He even made an attempt at a joke.

"Cyd, you ought to be in pictures," Nixon told the beautiful star. "I think I'll call some producers and see what I can do for you. On second thought, if I call them, you'll never do anything."

It looks like we won't be seeing too much of Vic Morrow on the home screens in the near future. The talented actor has graduated to important roles on the big screen.

After "The Baby Sitter," he's now being paged by Carlo Ponti and Rene Clement for their next big film, "Avenue of Indifference." And he also has leading roles in Disney's "Treasure At Matecumbe" and the Tatum O'Neal film, "Bad News Bears."

Lovely quote from Georgia Brown, the great English singer who created the PBS series, "Shoulder to Shoulder":

"The most disgusting thing in our times is alimony. A man may have to pay a woman for 20 years when he's only lived with her for two."

George Schaefer, who produced and directed so many of the shows over the years, was master of ceremonies for a brief montage of filmclips from some well-remembered productions, including "Little Moon of Alban," "The Magnificent Yankee," "The Snow Goose," "Teacher, Teacher" and "Macbeth."

George described Hall as "a man of infinite pride, determination and independence. He sat in Kansas City, guided by people with the agency to be sure, but he still made his decisions of what he wanted seen on his show by the people of America. Once the decision was made, he turned it over to the producer and director and there was no interference."

Schaefer also recalled that within 30 minutes of the conclusion of every Hallmark telecast, he would get a call from Hall, either saying the show wasn't as good as others or, "You surprised me tonight with a real good show."

The Hallmark Hall of Fame has won 45 Emmys. Among stars and directors of shows present at the luncheon were Richard Chamberlain, John Forsythe, Roddy McDowall, Julie Harris, Barry Sullivan, Ralph Bellamy, Patricia Morison, Ross Martin, Diane Baker, Peter Ustinov, Kay Lenz, Patrick Garland, Peter Bonerz and Harry Townes.

Barry Weitz, producer of NBC's Movin' On, tells the story of how tough it is shooting on location.

On a recent episode, the script called for a truck trailer to be pushed off a Chesapeake Bay ferry and explode. Only problem was that it didn't explode when it was supposed to. It was raining and getting dark — too late to try it again. So they had to send divers out to anchor the trailer in the Bay overnight and return to do it again the next day. This time it exploded.

People Quiz: What Makes Some People "Lucky at Love"?

Conway Twitty: You Have to Have Lived To Sing From the Heart!

Remembering "Ari" Backward Glimpses Of the Real Onassis

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR HARRY CHAPIN, composer-singer

How do you feel about musicians taking drugs? —P.M., Grand Forks, N.D.

● I think that, besides being very stupid, they're also terribly selfish. Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin could have given the public years and years of their talent had they not been addicts. My father, a jazz drummer, was a great admirer of Charlie Parker, the jazz saxophonist who also ended his life prematurely—through heroin. I was seven at the time. I remember Dad saying, "If you're really interested in music, don't put a filter between yourself and your senses." I never forgot those words. Musicians who are on dope don't take their work seriously. Geniuses who self-destruct are criminals. It's a crime to deprive the world of their art.

FOR HENRY KISSINGER

Why do you advocate that the U.S. give up control of the Panama Canal Zone?—Mildred Stork, Canton, Ohio

● The U.S. is seeking to establish a new and mutually acceptable relationship between our two countries whereby the U.S. can continue operating and defending the canal for a reasonably extended period of time. A new treaty would enable the U.S. to devote its energies to the efficient operation and control of the waterway and would leave other matters to the Panamanians. Moreover, it would hopefully provide a friendlier environment in Panama.

FOR VIKKI CARR

Do you think it's wrong for a woman to ask a man out?—B. B., Kenosha, Wis.

● No. A few years ago I realized a woman didn't lose her femininity if she invited a man to have a cup of coffee with her (and life has been much more pleasant as a result!). I think most men enjoy being asked for a date, rather than always having to be the ones who ask.

FOR MUHAMMAD ALI

Do you ever think of retiring?—J. B., Boise, Idaho

● I think about it only because I'll have to—in two years. That's after I've taken on Frazier, Foreman and Norton. When I give up the ring, I'll go into the ministry.

FOR PRINCESS MARGARET

You've been here so many times. What impresses you most about the U.S.?—A. S., New York, N.Y.

● Its vastness. It's like 50 separate countries, all joined together. And when I realize that Britain can fit into either Oregon or Wyoming with room to spare, it makes America seem even bigger.

FOR ARLENE FRANCIS

Are you forgetful?—Bob Smith, Stockton, Calif.

● Only about glasses. I find them in the oddest places—like the freezer. And I belong to the brigade of those who push their specs up on their hairline, then spend the next two hours looking for them. In fact, I'm so remiss that, as a precaution, I keep spares all over—at the office, even at friends' homes—so that I'll never be caught without them.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON

I understand you might retire from football at the end of this season. Any special reason?—Jenny Baker, Mano, Ohio

● My plans are not yet finalized, but if I retire from football now, it will be because of my acting career. In 1975 I was offered a couple of real juicy parts, but I couldn't accept them because of football. I enjoy acting—it's stimulating and it's something I can do for the rest of my life.

FOR BILLY DEE WILLIAMS, star of "Mahogany"

How do you feel about films that have racial overtones?—Kenneth Myers, Savannah, Ga.

● I don't like them, and I wouldn't be in one if I could help it or unless it was absolutely necessary. Movies in which whites and blacks are against each other are not for me. I did it once, in "Final Comedown," and that was enough. The way to smooth out differences is by playing to people's intelligence, not their ignorance.

FOR SALLY QUINN, newswoman

You always seem to be in controversial situations. Tell me about your first one.—S. Reed, Washington, D.C.

● At 15, I had a date with this terrific hockey captain. It was snowing when he picked me up. He sped off and I asked him to slow down, but he called me chicken and went even faster. The car skidded and I said, "Either you slow down or I'll get out." He stopped the car, so I got out and walked home. I had a better chance half-frozen than completely dead. He never dated me again. I didn't care—consideration is more important than looks.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Reading about Janet Lennon in FAMILY WEEKLY recently reminded me that the Lennon Sisters haven't been on the Lawrence Welk show for ages. What happened?—R. G., Gary, Ind.

Peggy Lennon

● According to Peggy Lennon, eight years ago, when the girls started marrying and raising families, they needed more money. They asked for a raise, but Lawrence Welk's policy is not to exceed union scale (then $210 a week). So they left. Welk discovered the girls, and Peggy stresses there were no bad feelings when they walked out. They haven't been in touch since the breakup, but they feel grateful to the bandleader for putting them "on the map," and are still extremely close to Welk's son, Larry. Peggy, Kathy, Janet and Dianne believe leaving the Welk show was a wise decision. They felt stifled singing the same kind of song week after week. "On the show we were children," said Kathy. "When we left, we became adults."

Through Halls of Love and Power, A Search for the Real Onassis

By Nicholas Gage
Author of "The Bourlotas Fortune"
(Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $8.95)

"He would come home and the moment he came in the door he would begin to tear off his clothes and throw them on the floor. Sometimes he would even throw himself on the floor and go to sleep right there on the carpet. An hour later he would be completely refreshed."

I first met Aristotle Onassis in 1969 when he was trying to negotiate a contract to build a $7 million refinery and industrial complex in Greece. I was then working for The Wall Street Journal and Onassis agreed to grant me an interview in Athens. To me, as a fellow Greek, Onassis had always been a puzzle. I had been proud of his success but disappointed by his apparent selfishness. With all his millions he had never donated a single school, hospital or library to Greece.

As the interview progressed, my suspicions began to be reinforced. "I'm a businessman," he told me at one point. "I'm out to make every million I can." I left the interview convinced that what made Onassis tick was simply lust for money.

But I later learned that there were many more sides to the man than I first suspected. For one thing, although he never openly gave to charity in his lifetime, he secretly did hundreds of charitable acts. As I learned more about him, I began to be fascinated by the contradictions. He was short and physically unappealing, but he mesmerized some of the world's most sought-after women. He was considered ruthless in business, but other shipowners told me he never could fire anyone who worked for him. He was envied by all the world, but his life was in the end a bitter disappointment to him.

My fascination with the mystery of Onassis finally led me to write a novel about Greek shipowners. My research took me through England, France, Greece and the Greek islands, talking to many Greek shipowners and their wives, children and mistresses. The result was a book called "The Bourlotas Fortune," which focuses on the competition between the old established Greek shipowners and an ambitious young upstart, like Onassis, who challenged their power and revolutionized the shipping business.

I talked with people who had known Onassis as an employer, a schoolmate, a business rival and a friend. Each disclosed a piece of the puzzle and slowly a picture began to form. I learned, for example, that Onassis' chief motivation was not greed but a sense of loss. He had spent his youth as the son of a well-to-do merchant in Smyrna in Asia Minor, and when the Turks attacked the city in 1922, massacring Greeks and Armenians by the thousands, his uncle and beloved grandmother perished and Onassis and the rest of his family were forced to flee.

Wide World

Aristotle Onassis: He knew instantly what women wanted him to be and to say.

"Onassis came from a family that was very well off, and suddenly he found himself poor—a refugee," Constantine Gratsos, Onassis' closest friend for almost 50 years, told me. "He wanted to recapture what he had lost, and he did it beyond his wildest dreams."

I also caught glimpses of Onassis' superhuman energy, his genius for business and his tremendous persuasive powers. "His energy was amazing," one of his chief aides in Greece told me. "He could go for two or three days without sleep and show no signs of fatigue at all." In Paris, Ingeborg Dedichen, who lived with Onassis from 1934 to 1946, told me what he was like after coping with a grueling business crisis. "He would come home and the moment he came in the door he would begin to tear off his clothes and throw them on the floor. Sometimes he would even throw himself on the floor and go to sleep right there on the carpet. An hour later he would be completely refreshed."

When talking about Onassis, people

Doris Lilly Remembers: Ari Was Selfish, Childish and (Doggone It!) Attractive

By Doris Lilly
TV Reporter and Author of
"How to Marry a Millionaire"

Aristotle Onassis was the kind of man who could sign a contract with disappearing ink, never marry the women who really loved him and eat raw onions for lunch. He was also one of the stingiest men in the world. But, doggone it, he was attractive.

One night Ari and I were having dinner at El Morocco and a Greek friend of his gave me some worry beads. I liked them. Not gawdy, but sweet. Later, Ari, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. and I drove over to P. J. Clarke's—a gregarious New York saloon that caters to alcoholic lovers, insomniacs, or both. A pair of seedy-looking hippies stopped by our table to gape, and Ari instructed me to give them my worry beads. I hesitated. "Don't worry," he crowed, "I'll send you some really good ones tomorrow." Sadly, for me, tomorrow never came. And when I reminded him of his oversight some weeks later, he shrugged and looked away.

Onassis and Miss Lilly at El Morocco, the New York night club, in the 1960's.

Howard Hughes, would pretend he was deaf when he didn't want to answer you. In actual fact, Howard's hearing is sharper than that of a cocker spaniel's. That man can hear a Kleenex drop.

Like so many successful men of my acquaintance, Ari needed little sleep. I asked him about this and he told me, "All I need is about three hours a night. I can stay up with no sleep at all for two days. Then I go to bed and sleep for 24 hours straight and wake up refreshed." He didn't know it then, of course, but this is a symptom of myasthenia gravis, the paralyzing nerve disease that took his life. But even if he had known, it wouldn't have made any difference. Ari lived life to the hilt. He never missed a beat.

Aboard the lavish Christina, Ari appeared more impressive than on land. Taller even—more handsome. He was secure in his winged, sea-girt citadel. The crew danced around him like a pack of ring-tailed monkeys. He wallowed in the spectacle. During lunch, which was generally doused in spiced lukewarm oil, Ari came into his own. (Later, Jackie brought fruit aboard—no doubt to allay an epidemic of scurvy.) Ari banged on the table and told ribald jokes. He reveled in the boat's appointments. "Look," he said, fingering the arm of my chair, "see, see, there's a hook there to hang your handbag." Marvelous. "Look at those cigarettes," he hollered, "see, see, they're named Old Sailor." Big laugh from all sides. The staterooms were named after Greek Islands. The room the ladies used to "freshen up" was called "Lesbos." Funny! In spite of all this ribaldry, ladies were instructed to wear dresses at lunch. Ari despised trousers on women. (Apparently he changed later, because that's all Jackie ever wore.)

But there was such honesty about this man, such naivete, that you couldn't help marveling at his ability to amass that fortune, to achieve his celebrity. But again—he was attractive, in spite of it.

Those great, round olive eyes were blotted out by his sunglasses—black shades that he wore at breakfast, lunch and dinner. Did he wear them in the bathtub? I know of someone who can answer that—Ingeborg Dedichen. When Ari met Ingeborg he was a struggling young beginner. Her father, a powerful Norwegian fleet owner, helped give him his start.

Says Ingeborg: "Ari was fearless, cool and level-headed. He demanded military obedience and was insanely jealous." To punish her for going out with an Italian, Ari forced her to eat spaghetti at every meal for two weeks. They stayed together for 12 years. But, although Ingeborg loved him, eventually he married Athina Livanos, the daughter of the fantastically rich Greek shipowner—Stavros Livanos.

Maria Callas loved him, too. When he left her to marry Jack Kennedy's widow, Maria said, "First I lost my weight, then I lost my voice and now I've lost Onassis."

But, damn it, in spite of everything, Ari Onassis was one of the most attractive men in the world. A genius? Make it three-fifths genius and two-fifths sheer fudge.

How Nature Fights Cholesterol Clogged Arteries Blood Pressure Dangers

Scientists Discover Body's Natural Defenses Against 3 Big Killers

By E. L. Robinson

Did you know that Nature blessed your arteries with a self-cleaning system? That natural forces war against lifeless matter forcing it out of your body? Recently, Medical Scientists were shocked to discover that scores of so-called "healthful" foods can interrupt nature's wonderful defense mechanisms . . . that those "good-for-you" foods actually contain substances that could cause dangerous cholesterol sludge. Doctors warn that this scummy, lifeless matter may choke arteries, hamper blood flow, and damage the heart. Right now, millions are suffering from cholesterol-clogged arteries. Yet they don't even realize it! What a pity! If they only knew about the PROTEIDE-PLUS diet, their arteries would tend to clear themselves!

As far back as 1950, medical scientists began extensive, searching investigations into the role of foods in cholesterol build-up. Thousands of victims of strokes and heart attacks were diagnosed, interviewed and carefully studied. Over 800 basic foods were analyzed. Close to 5000 laboratory tests and even autopsies were performed. From this mountain of world-wide research came startling new discoveries. Now-at-last the missing link between cholesterol, high blood pressure and heart trouble had been found. And most significant of all, it had been proven beyond doubt, that a wholesome PROTEIDE-PLUS diet was absolutely necessary to reduce cholesterol sludge in the arteries.

Now scientists know that certain foods containing cholesterol and saturated fats are not necessarily harmful correctly prepared. But when processed incorrectly, they become downright dangerous to the body. They know that cholesterol scum can become hardened like chalky soap powder, sticking onto artery walls. With passing time, it may choke the arteries, ending with crippling disease.

That's why it's so essential to use the wholesome PROTEIDE-PLUS diet of the right foods. Prepared properly, these delicious, truly healthful foods avoid burdening the blood circulatory system. Your arteries are helped to clear themselves. It's all so simple when you know the facts.

A Search for the Real Onassis

who knew him best invariably used the word "genius." Andreas Lemos, a shipowner and historian who lives in Athens, told me about Onassis' revolutionary innovations in the shipping business—for example, financing ships with other people's money. He would obtain a long-term charter from an oil company for a not-yet-built supertanker and then use the charter as collateral to finance the building of the tanker. He also pioneered the idea of registering his ships under flags of convenience to avoid taxes and government regulations.

But it was Onassis' ability to bend men or women to his will that most impressed those who knew him. "He had such a strong presence and he could talk brilliantly on any subject," said a Greek woman who was close to the family. "He could convince you of anything."

Tina Livanos

Jacqueline Onassis

Maria Callas

Wide World

Women were always drawn to this complicated man—certainly not by his physical appearance. And his wealth wasn't the whole answer either, for he broke a number of hearts before he was rich. Even after he made his millions, there were many men as wealthy as Onassis who could not captivate a Maria Callas or a Jacqueline Kennedy.

"He had a great gift, a real genius, for charming people," Ingeborg Dedichen told me. "He could sit down at a table with a woman and know instantly what she wanted him to be and to say."

Onassis would set about stalking a woman who interested him with the same single-minded persistence that he applied to cornering a lucrative shipping deal. He could be the most attentive and generous suitor in the world—a quality which appealed to young Tina Onassis, whose father, Stavros Livanos, was famous for his penny-pinching ways. Onassis courted the 16-year-old girl with jewelry inscribed T.I.L.Y. (for "Tina, I love you") and after their marriage showered her with expensive presents.

To Maria Callas, Onassis showed a will as strong as her own. He charmed the fiery-tempered diva to the point where she gave up her career for the ten years she spent with him.

For Jacqueline Kennedy, Onassis revealed another facet of his chameleon-like personality. To her he was all-attentive, comforting and protective. According to a woman who was friends with both of them, "He managed to make her feel totally secure and pampered, as if she were the only woman in the world. And this is what Jackie needs."

In a word, Onassis could be anything to any woman, and that gift outweighs wealth, looks or sexual prowess.

Like the ancient Greek hero Ulysses, and many Greeks after him, Onassis was torn between love of home and family and the need to roam the world at will. According to Gratsos, who knew him from the time he was 24, "He was a wonderful family man. He loved his children more than anyone I've ever known. But he wasn't meant to be married; he was born to be a bachelor. He was a man who moves, who takes nothing and goes when he feels like it. To such a man, every woman he becomes involved with eventually becomes a burden."

Even Jacqueline Onassis found this to be true according to a woman friend of hers. She told me about riding with Onassis and his wife in Athens one day when Onassis suddenly, without explanation, told the driver to stop and let him out. While Jackie stared after him in surprise, Onassis continued on foot, staring into windows, greeting passers-by and generally enjoying his freedom.

As he grew older, Onassis began to think of his empire as a monument to his name. His son Alexander was the heir to the throne and he would, in Greek fashion, name his first son Aristotle, thus perpetuating the line through eternity. That's why Alexander's death was the greatest tragedy that could befall Onassis. "After his son died, he lost his will to live," said Gratsos. "He worked harder in order to forget, but the loss of his son crippled him."

Onassis was a student of all things Greek, especially classical Greek literature. He must have reflected ruefully, as he slowly lost his long battle with myasthenia gravis, on what became of all the Greek heroes who aspired to immortality. Immortality belonged only to the gods. Whenever a mortal was rash enough to seek it for himself, he was inevitably struck down for his hubris, or pride. Like his hero Ulysses, Onassis had had quite a journey—a trip which had included the greatest success, power and drama the world can give. But he also had been guilty of the overreaching pride—the hubris—that has always been the downfall of man. No doubt Onassis realized near the end that he had climbed too far toward the peaks of Olympus.

A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY FOR COLLECTORS OF ART IN PRECIOUS METAL

The National Preservation of Wildlife Association and The Hamilton Mint Proudly Present

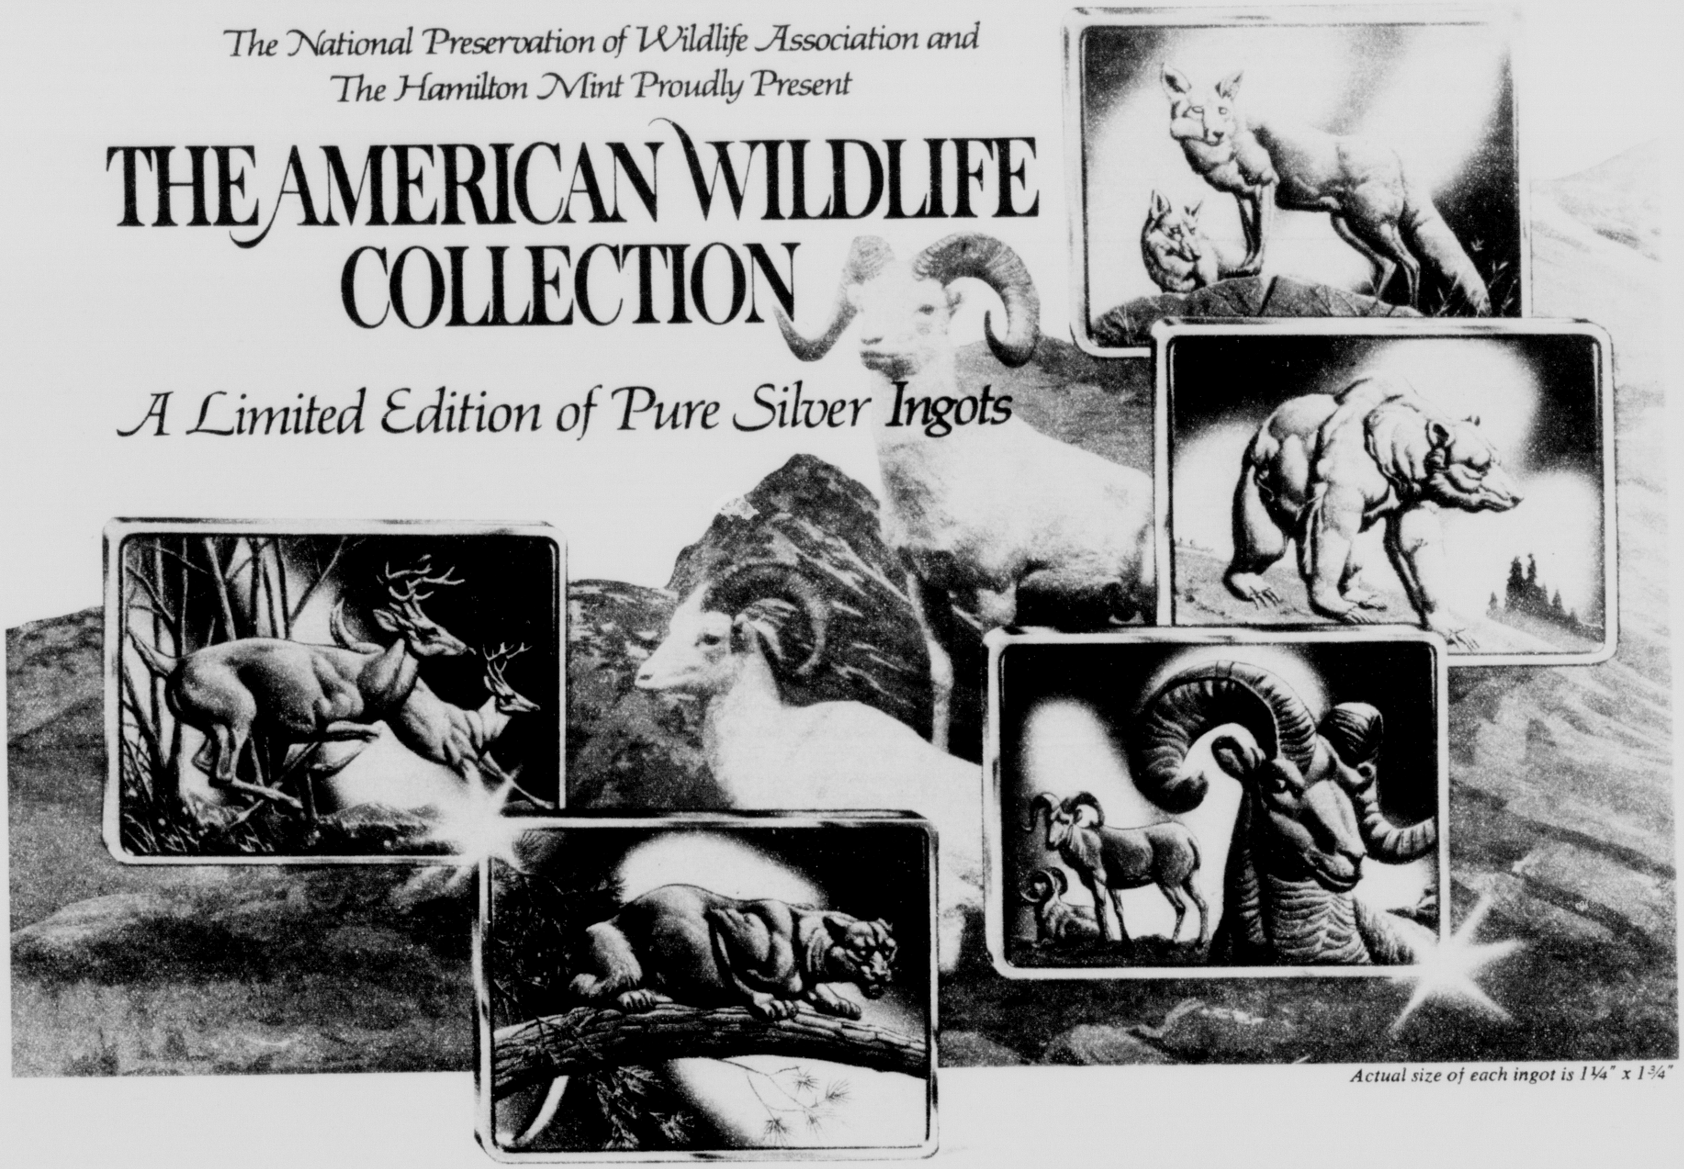
THE AMERICAN WILDLIFE COLLECTION

A Limited Edition of Pure Silver Ingots



Actual size of each ingot is 1¼" x 1¾"

A Single Minting of 50 Magnificent Proof Ingots, Limited to Just 10,000 Sets in .999 Fine Silver.

HERE IS A MAGNIFICENT TRIBUTE to the grandeur of America's wildlife. The Hamilton Mint, together with the National Preservation of Wildlife Association, announces the minting of a new collection of Pure Silver Ingots, portraying the beauty and diversity of the land animals, birds and sea life that inhabit America.

A COLLECTION OF BROAD SCOPE

"The American Wildlife Collection" Series of 50 ingots is one of the most comprehensive collections ever issued by The Hamilton Mint. It combines superb visual beauty with lifelike portrayals of each animal.

Among the native wildlife represented will be: the Wild Horse, the California Condor, the Gray Whale, the American Bison, the Wolverine and the Florida Manatee—all 50 subjects will comprise a fascinating panorama of nature for the naturalist as well as the collector.

A TREASURY OF MASTERPIECES

Each gleaming proof ingot will contain a full ounce (480 grains) of .999 fine silver, the finest and purest silver available. The image areas will be in frosted bas-relief, dramatically set against a brilliant mirror-like background. The entire set will contain 24,000 grains (over 4 troy pounds) of pure silver, more than the average family accumulates in a lifetime.

YOUR OWN PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

Your "American Wildlife" ingots will be custom minted to your order and will bear your own personal serial number plus The Hamilton Mint Hallmark. Serial numbers will be assigned in the order that applications are received, with the lower and potentially more valuable numbers going to the earliest subscribers. You will also receive a Certificate of Authenticity, certifying the limited edition status and precious metal content of the series.

A SINGLE LIMITED MINTING WITH GUARANTEED PRICE PROTECTION

The edition will be strictly limited to just 10,000 proof sets in silver, issued at the rate of two-a-month for a period of 25 months. Once this edition limit has been reached, the minting dies will be destroyed, thus safeguarding the integrity of the edition.

The original issue price for each ingot will be just $14.95, and this price will be guaranteed to subscribers over the entire issue period no matter how high the price of silver may rise. And, a portion of the proceeds of each sale will go to the National Preservation of Wildlife Association, a non-profit organization dedicated to protecting our wildlife.

Please remember that there is a strict limit of 10,000 proof sets, so prompt action is essential if you wish to be included within the edition limits.

FREE DISPLAY CASE AND DELUXE NATURE VOLUME

Subscribers will receive a handsome display case, free of charge, to house the entire Collection. Also at no cost, you'll receive a special bonus, "Nature Atlas of America," a beautiful 255 page volume with 361 full color photographs and illustrations. This handsome book is a large 8½" x 11" and has a deluxe library binding.

ARCHIVE EDITION: 24 KT. GOLD ON PURE SILVER

You may also order these ingots in extravagantly beautiful 24 Kt. gold on .999 fine silver. Only 5,000 sets will be minted, thus making this edition quite rare. Each ingot will also be individually serially numbered and hallmarked and each will cost just $19.95.

Announcing an extraordinary Bicentennial tribute to the States — Official First Day Covers of

The Flags of the Fifty States

In America — for perhaps the first time — flags were banners of the People themselves. Symbols of their hopes, aspirations, and ideals. With Independence those flags became the emblems of thirteen Independent Sovereign States, deriving their powers from the consent of the people themselves. The perfect embodiment of independent spirit, traditions, determination, and sense of destiny which the Declaration of Independence proclaimed.

History remembers, for instance, that Virginia's Flag, which shows Virtue with her foot on Tyranny, was inspired in 1776 by George Mason's suggestion that his State's motto should be a defiant Sic semper tyrranis (thus always to tyrants). And that New Jersey's buff flag recalls the color chosen in 1779 by George Washington for the uniforms of New Jersey's regiments fighting for Independence.

Now, two centuries later, the thirteen flags have grown to fifty. Each intimately woven from the fabric of America's proud history.

It is fitting that as a part of the Nation's Bicentennial Celebration, the United States Postal Service will issue on February 23, 1976, an unprecedented series of fifty different Official Commemorative stamps portraying The Flags of the Fifty States. This will be the first such series to honor all fifty state flags, and like all firsts, certain to command the special attention of collectors everywhere.

Available to you: the First Editions

The assembled Governors of all fifty States and other leading citizens will gather in the Nation's Capital on February 23 to inaugurate the new stamps. At special ceremonies, first editions of the new stamps . . . First Day Covers . . . will be officially certified by the coveted, one-day-only, First Day of Issue postmark of our National Capital's Post Office. These will be but a small fraction of the total number of stamps eventually printed and available to the general public.

Appropriately, Fleetwood, America's oldest and largest purveyor of First Day Covers, will issue The Flags of the Fifty States in one complete collection of fifty Official First Day Covers. The first fifty collections have been reserved for the Archives of each of the fifty States. Identical collections are also available now to private citizens on an advance reservation basis.

A remarkable collection

As befits such a series, each will be extraordinary in every respect.

The individual cachets will portray one great citizen from each State who, under an Act of Congress, has been honored in the National Statuary Hall of the United States Capitol in Washington. These are men and women "illustrious for their historic renown or for distinguished civic or military services" to their State and Nation. They are the proud sons and daughters who have given substance to the vision of our Declaration of Independence.

A deluxe collector's album included

Collectors will also receive, without additional cost, a handsomely bound collector's album, with protective dustcase. To enhance the historical and educational value of this collection, an authoritative reference guide will be provided with biographies of the citizens honored on the cachets. And the fascinating history and significance of each state Flag.

A single, genuinely limited, edition

The Flags of the Fifty States will be issued only once — on the precise First Day of Issue, and only as a complete collection. The distinctive postmark will certify to you that it can never be issued again. The original issue price for the complete collection is $70, and you may pay for it in its entirety now, charge it to your MasterCharge or BankAmericard Charge account, or pay for it on a convenient installment program.

A collection of timeless significance

The Flags of the Fifty States deserve an honored place in your home. As constant reminders of the great and unique contributions which each of the States have made to the Nation born two hundred years ago this July 4th. And as a legacy which will continue to inspire you, your children, and their children for generations to come.

Subscription deadline: February 15

To take advantage of your opportunity to acquire this collection, your order should be postmarked no later than February 15, 1976 — the last date on which Fleetwood can guarantee acceptance of your order. Applications should be sent directly to Fleetwood, 1 Unicover Center, Cheyenne, Wyoming 82008.

WORLD GLOBE © RAND McNALLY © 1975 FLEETWOOD

Crafted expressly for this series, each of the fifty different cachets will pay tribute to the State's most distinguished citizen today honored in the National Statuary Hall of the United States Capitol.

Our National Capital's Post Office will officially postmark each First Day Cover. Available only at Washington, the coveted First Day of Issue indicia will forever certify the one day and the one place the first edition of the new stamp was inaugurated.

Each of the fifty Official commemorative stamps will be issued by the United States Postal Service pursuant to law. Since stamps will be issued only on February 23, 1976, artists' concepts are used herein for illustrative purposes.

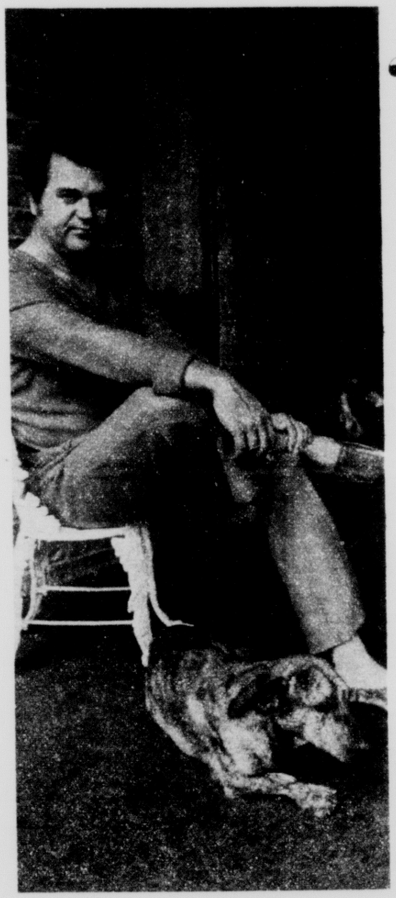
Star Chat

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Conway Twitty:



"I don't have the same lifestyle that a lot of other stars have. I enjoy the "down home" type of living—reading, fishing, doing things with my kids—not going to big parties."

"You Have to Have Lived To Sing From the Heart"

The story goes that when a young man named Harold Lloyd Jenkins first tried to break into the music business, he was advised that he should not use the name Harold Lloyd because of Harold Lloyd, the movie comic. His manager thought the name "Conway Twitty" would be different. They chose it from a map showing Conway, Arkansas, and Twitty, Texas.

That was many years, three movies and millions of records ago. Since then, Conway Twitty has successfully made the jump from rock and roll to country-western superstardom. Yet when he walked into the Sheraton Universal Coffee Shop recently, I had a hard time recognizing him. Straight-laced, middle-aged, he looked more like an accountant than a man of such a varied and colorful background. . . .

FAMILY WEEKLY: Is it true that your father was a riverboat captain on the Mississippi and that you learned to play the guitar sitting in the pilot's house, or is this just a publicity story?

TWITTY: It's true. From the time I was five until I was 21 I spent a lot of time on Dad's ferryboat.

FW: Ferryboat?

TWITTY: Yes, we went from the Arkansas side to the Mississippi side. Once in a while, we'd go up and down the river to turn on the channel lights.

FW: Did you work on the ferry or just play the guitar and sing?

TWITTY: I sure didn't do much work when I was five, but later, I worked as a deck hand. I earned my keep.

FW: You were a big hit as a rock-and-roll singer. What made you switch to country-western music?

TWITTY: I wanted to do country-western music ever since I got out of the Army in 1956, but didn't for two reasons: First of all, I did not think I could compete with people like Roy Acuff, Red Foley, Bill Monroe and all those country-western heroes. Secondly, it was a matter of age. I was only 23 then. In my opinion, that wasn't old enough to sing country-western. You have to know what it means to feel sad, to be lied to, cheated to—even do some cheating yourself—before you can sing those emotions from the heart.

FW: Why do country-western songs invariably deal with cheating and other depressing subjects?

TWITTY: Why are newspaper headlines always tragic? You never read about good deeds. People prefer sad stories. I've been married a long time, and most of that time's been good. We've got four kids—two boys and two girls. But when you're married as long as I've been, once every seven years or so something happens. You run into someone else. An incident that stands out in your memory. But in-between, you forget. You think of the baseball games and the wiener roasts and all the good times together.

FW: And yet country-western singers seem to stay married a lot longer than other people in show business. How do you explain that?

TWITTY: I can only speak for myself: I don't have the same lifestyle that a lot of other stars have. I enjoy the "down home" type of living—reading, fishing, doing things with my kids—not going to big parties. And of course I'm on the road about 200 days a year. Sometimes this has been hard on my wife. Recently, she decided she needed some other interests, so she's been going to college, taking home economics.

FW: In recent months, country-western songs have become sexier. How do you explain that?

TWITTY: There has always been reference to sex. But it's true, it has become more outspoken. Just as movies are. You didn't have things on the screen ten years ago that you see in R- and X-rated movies today.

FW: Have there been any especially sad events in your life?

TWITTY: I suppose the one that hit me hardest was back in 1969 when my dad passed away. I was with him.

FW: Did you compose a song about it?

TWITTY: No. I honestly don't know if I could.

TWITTY: When I got out of high school, I had an offer to sign with the Philadelphia Phillies. That was back in the early fifties. I didn't want to accept until I had enough money to buy a car so I could get around. So I went to Chicago and worked for the International Harvester Company until I had enough money to buy a 1948 Buick. It must be about 550 miles from Chicago to Mississippi and I used 14 quarts of oil to get back. When I got home, my mother told me that I had a draft notice. So I gave the car to my brother.

FW: And he kept pouring oil into it?

TWITTY: Somebody told us about something called Motor Cure that you pour into the crankcase. It's supposed to fill in all the cracks. Well, we used it. My brother drove that car for another 100,000 miles and never poured any more oil into it.

FW: Didn't you want to become a minister at one time?

TWITTY: Yes, when I was 15, I wanted to do something worthwhile. Like becoming a doctor, a veterinarian or, most of all, a minister. I preached the Bible for two and a half years. By the time I was 17, I began to see things differently. I found out that the church deacons I had listened to were cheating people. It really threw me. A 100-percent shock!

"At one time, the 'Grand Ole Opry' was the best exporter of country-western music. Today, there are 6,000 stations broadcasting country-western music, so why should I obligate myself for 40 bucks a night?"

FW: Do you still feel that way?

TWITTY: No, today I understand that nothing is 100 percent. Everybody has some good and some bad in him.

FW: How come you appeared in the "Grand Ole Opry" only once?

TWITTY: It's a matter of economics. At one time, the "Grand Ole Opry" was the best exporter of country-western songs. Today there are 6,000 stations broadcasting country-western music, so why should I obligate myself for 40 bucks a night? I simply can't afford it.

FW: What about the future?

TWITTY: I have been on the road almost 18 years now; I don't think I can go another 18. That's why I want to get into the management business, to begin taking on other people.

FW: Are you a good businessman?

FW: What's a Twitty Burger?

TWITTY: My version of a hamburger. It took 12 years and an awful lot of money out of my life. That's when I decided to stick to what I know. And it isn't Twitty Burgers. It's country-western music.

Now-amazing medicated rub
Stops Arthritis Pain
-up to 3 hours at a time!

You've seen the dramatic EXOCAINE demonstrations on TV . . . read about EXOCAINE in leading magazines and newspapers. Now, try it FREE!

New York, N.Y. (Special—All over America, many grateful arthritic sufferers are today singing the praises of EXOCAINE.® And no wonder! For this different-kind-of-medicated rub not only reduces painful joint inflammation (like other rubs); but EXOCAINE is the only one that contains an anesthetic to temporarily desensitize and deaden nerve endings that transmit arthritic pain.

What Is Arthritis?

To help you understand the way EXOCAINE works, you should know that arthritis means "inflammation of the joints"... inflammation that can give you an aching back, stiff neck, sore knees, painful elbows, hands, or fingers; that can interfere with your work, your sleep, your enjoyment of life.

There are over 150 different kinds of arthritis and rheumatism! That's why, only a doctor should diagnose your problems and prescribe your medications. Usually they recommend analgesic tablets. But, for more relief than you can get from aspirin alone, many physicians also suggest rubbing in EXOCAINE MEDICATED RUB—where it hurts.

Great News!

Until recently, rubs contained only analgesics, to help reduce arthritic joint inflammation. But now, EXOCAINE does more! That's because EXOCAINE not only reduces joint inflammation but also contains an extra ingredient... a fast-acting anesthetic to temporarily deaden and stop the transitory aches and pains of arthritis and rheumatism.

Your first trial should convince you that you've never used anything like pain-deadening EXOCAINE! Today, get this remarkable medicated rub at any drug counter; or take advantage of our FREE friend-winning introductory offer! Mail coupon—NOW!

WHAT GRATEFUL USERS SAY . . .

"I saw EXOCAINE on TV about a year ago. Because none of the other rubs gave me much help, I decided to try EXOCAINE. Words can't describe the wonderful relief EXOCAINE gives me." Mrs. E. K. Perryville, Md.

"My mother's been troubled by arthritis for years. Often her pains made her so stiff she could hardly get out of bed in the morning. I got EXOCAINE for her. Now she hardly lets a day go by without blessing me." Mrs. E. L., New York, N.Y.

"I get so much relief and comfort from EXOCAINE I wish I had heard of it sooner." W. H. Lakeview, Iowa.

What really counts is not what others say; but how EXOCAINE may help you! So, mail coupon—now!

* EXOCAINE does not interfere with your aspirin; or any other medications your doctor may advise.

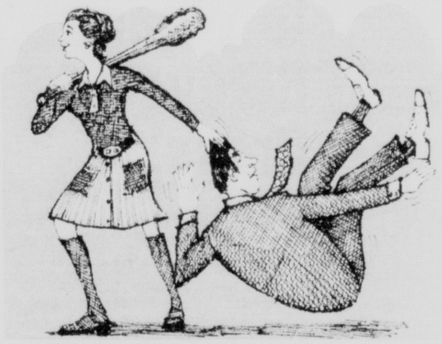
What Really Makes People "Lucky at Love"?

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson



True or False? Seeking the ideal mate isn't hard if you go about it correctly. (See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Not how good-looking you are, but how satisfied you are with the way you look, determines the happiness of your love life.

2. Everybody loves somebody.

3. Seeking the ideal mate isn't hard if you go about it correctly.

4. Women have a more loving attitude toward their mates than do men.

ANSWERS

1. True. If you're not happy with the way you look, it's going to be more difficult for you to achieve romantic happiness. Psychological studies at McGill University confirm the findings of other investigations which show that men and women who are most satisfied with the way they look are also the most satisfied with their love relationships.

2. False. Dr. Raymond F. Gale, Professor of Psychology at Ball State University, provides a personality profile of the unloving individual in his treatise "Who Are You?" His studies show that this type of person "is a 'cold fish,' so to speak—insensitive to the feelings of others, yet extremely sensitive himself. He does not understand love—the one thing he craves and needs most. Because there are few others who understand or appreciate his unloving behavior, he is unlikely to receive the affection he needs." Also, a Veterans Administration study of men who manipulate women for romantic purposes yielded significant findings. This type of man, who cloaks his insincerity with smooth talk and false pretenses, was found to be incapable of love and narcissistic (he finds it hard to pass a mirror without at least one admiring glance). And he relates to women only superficially and with contempt.

3. False. The search for an ideal mate may not be exactly like finding a needle in a haystack, but that simile will do until another one comes along. As psychologist Richard Centers points out in his excellent monograph on "Sexual Attraction and Love," "People do not have 'the world to choose from' in seeking a mate or love partner. Their circles of acquaintances are quite limited and their contacts are few." He observes further that the type of person whose personality and general attributes mesh harmoniously with yours may be in short supply—and this might require a compromise. So, unless you're lucky, the search isn't likely to be easy. But whatever the case, no quest is more worthwhile or capable of paying richer dividends.

4. True—as evidenced by a team of University of Toronto psychologists whose studies showed that women express stronger affection, trust and admiration for their romantic partners than men do; that they are more socially sensitive, emotionally responsive and more receptive to love in the truly romantic sense.

Woman Can't Sleep Tortured All Night

She can't sleep... it's one of those occasional nights when simple nervous tension keeps her awake tossing and turning. Lack of sleep oftentimes causes irritability and that downright worn-out feeling. Fortunately a little blue pill called Compoz works to help you unwind the minor and temporary up-tight feelings, so sound blissful sleep may be yours. This modern relaxant tablet contains no barbiturates so it helps you sleep more naturally. So don't suffer the agonizing torture of another sleepless night needlessly. Get Compoz today. Follow directions carefully and see if Compoz doesn't help you sleep sound tonight or tomorrow night. Compoz is not intended for serious or chronic conditions that need a doctor's attention, but only when those occasional sleepless nights occur.

For a free trial package of Compoz send 50¢ to cover postage and handling to Dept. FWA, Box 553, Union, N.J. 07083.

IT'S TIME SHE SWITCHED TO ONE OF TODAY'S MOST EFFECTIVE SCALP MEDICATION INGREDIENTS FOR TOUGH DANDRUFF PROBLEMS.

If your husband can't stand watching you scratching your scalp because the itching is "all but killing" you, you may need a tough dandruff shampoo called Psorex.

Psorex is a medicated shampoo that combats the scales of simple dandruff with one of the most effective scalp medication ingredients you can get for the problem. And Psorex also helps relieve the itching that can be caused by psoriasis, eczema and mild seborrhea. Start using tough, medicated Psorex Shampoo today, and keep on using it regularly, at least once or twice a week. You'll see how Psorex helps control even the most persistent scales of simple dandruff... and helps eliminate the itching. For a free trial sample of Psorex send 50¢ to cover postage and handling to Dept. FWAJ, Box 553, Union, New Jersey 07083.

Sports Mini-Profile

CHRIS McCARRON

Horse Racing's Brightest New Superstar

As a child growing up in Boston, red-haired Chris McCarron dreamed of becoming a hockey player for his beloved Boston Bruins. But when he reached 5-3 and stopped growing, it was obvious that he would have to follow the example of his older brother Gregg and become a jockey. His success in racing has been phenomenal. At the age of 19, he set a new world record by riding a total of 546 winners in a year. The incredible aspect to this record is that young Chris set it while still an apprentice jockey. He was an exercise boy at the Laurel Race Track in Maryland until he was allowed to ride his first race in January 1974. He finished last in that race but showed enough potential to convince trainer Odie Clelland to give him other mounts. He won his first race 16 days later and after that, just kept winning and winning. By bizarre coincidence, Chris beat out his own brother to win the race that set the new record. It was a close duel down the stretch with Chris's horse edging in front just at the finish. Chris's father, Herbert, was at Laurel that day. "I didn't know what to do, so I just screamed for both of them to finish in a dead heat," he recalls. "The way it turned out, I'm terribly happy for Chris, and Gregg is happy for him, too . . ." Chris's rise to racing stardom has made a few changes in his lifestyle. As an exercise boy, he lived in a tiny room in the area of the stables at Laurel. Now he lives with friends in a well-kept garden apartment and has replaced his old car with a new sports car. But he's not indulging himself otherwise, and his mother is acting as trustee for his savings. "There's always a chance this could end tomorrow," the 108-pound jockey says. "The first time my brother sat on a race horse, he was thrown and kicked and nearly lost his sight in one eye. I've been thrown off horses a couple of times, and although nothing serious happened, there's always the danger in this sport of suffering permanent injury." —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

When Antibiotics Don't Work

Say you have an infection. If it's caused by bacteria, your doctor can give you an antibiotic. But if it's caused by a virus, antibiotics do not work. There are more than 500 different kinds of viruses that can cause trouble in man. About 90 percent of respiratory infections are virus-induced. And we are continuously finding that other illnesses are due to viruses. How does a doctor know for sure that he is dealing with a virus? First, he examines the patient and considers the patient's complaint. This usually gives him a clue. If he wants to be absolutely certain, he may order lab tests. But since it takes almost five days to grow a virus in a laboratory, then another five days to identify it, lab tests are usually ordered only when the infection seems more serious or persistent. The protection against virus infections is a vaccine. It stimulates antibody protection, hence increasing body resistance. There are vaccines against smallpox, flu, polio, etc. What about treatment? There are certain virus killers that are used against more serious virus infections, but they are rather toxic. A new virus killer called "interferon" has far less potential for toxicity, but it is not yet available, and studies are still being made.

BOB COUSY
Chasing the Dream

Bob Cousy, the ex-Boston Celtics superstar, speaks out: " 'Winning at Any Cost' may well be the chapter heading when future historians tell the story of the American society of our time. Success. Winning. They are words stitched into the national fabric along with the Stars and Stripes. Growing up during World War II, I remember learning early that America had never lost a war. . . . And years later we were ridiculing any 'no-win' policy in Vietnam. . . . Then came Watergate. Again, men of my generation showed they would do anything to succeed. 'I'd walk over my grandmother to win an election,' Charles Colson said. The operative words were 'Do what has to be done, but don't get caught.' We had come to a time and place in history where the White House itself offered the oldest of apologies for wrongdoing: the end justifies the means. Re-electing Richard Nixon was good for this country and its people; hence, any means justified that end. Which of us hasn't used that same excuse? If I would run over someone in a casual game of basketball, could I blame Charles Colson for his statement? The pressure is always there for most of us. Win or be fired, the coach is told. Sell the product or be gone, the salesman is told. 'Winning isn't everything,' Vince Lombardi told us, 'it's the only thing.' And he was right." From "The Killer Instinct," by Bob Cousy with John Devaney (Random House, $7.95).

Film director Sydney Pollack ("The Way We Were," "Three Days of the Condor") told FAMILY WEEKLY about the hardest part of his job: "It's what happens after a picture is finished that's difficult for me. I have to go out and sell the picture over TV, radio and to the press. After a while, I get sick of hearing myself talk. I feel cheap. It's not a good thing for a grown man to do! But I know I have to do this publicity work. A director invests a year of his life in making a movie (four months of preparation, three months of shooting and five months of editing). Actors have it a lot easier—they can make a couple of movies a year if they're in demand, and they don't have to sell themselves afterwards. If you're a star, people want to worship you, be like you or be frustrated because they can't get near you. Directors just don't have that kind of appeal or influence over the masses."

Sydney Pollack

JEANNIE AND JOHNNY MORRIS
From Russia, with mixed emotions

A couple of TV sportscasters (who happen to be married to each other), left their jobs last year and took off with their four kids for a year of foreign adventure, equipped with six suitcases and a van ("The Blue Beast"). Which country intrigued them the most? Jeannie Morris told FAMILY WEEKLY: "Russia was the most memorable, although certainly not the most enjoyable. The Intourist Bureau programs your visit so that you see only what it wants you to see and stay where you are told to stay. We found the female road gangs, the huge military presence and tired peasant faces very depressing. Also, the alcoholism rate is staggering and the Russians' diet seems to consist of sour cream and onions on every dish. But we were impressed as well. The people have an inner resiliency and were excited to meet us because they wanted to hear about life in America. We saw much evidence of striving for material improvement, both by the government and individuals, legions of whom were small-scale capitalists."

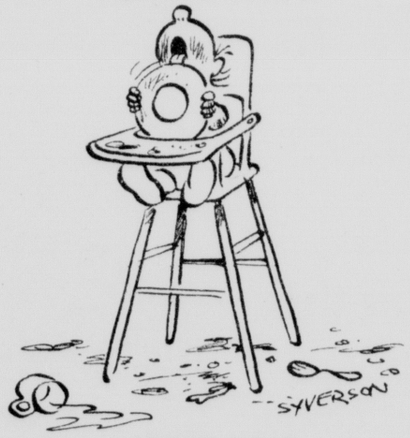
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



COMING CLEAN

"Clean your plate," my mother said,
And clean my plate I did.
For I was an obedient,
Intimidated kid.

And though she's not a scold,
From habit (and from cowardice)
I do as I am told.

But I've begun to balk a bit
And look askance, doggone it,
At those, including me, whose plate
Has too much piled upon it.

My neighbor unexpectedly discovered an excellent method of teaching his children the value of money. He tried to borrow some from them.

A visit to Grandma's farm was very exciting for our four-year-old Terri. One morning she asked permission to go into the hen house to look for eggs. Grandma said she doubted there would be any at that time of day. "Yes, there is," Terri explained, "I heard a hen giggling!"

SPECIAL BICENTENNIAL OFFER!

LIMITED TIME OFFER: SPECIAL BICENTENNIAL BINDING

▲10-Volume Ready Reference ◀One-Volume Outline of Knowledge ▲19 Volumes of Knowledge in Depth

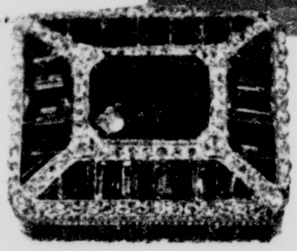
Triggered Lightning. Articles on "Lightning" appear in all three parts of the encyclopaedia. They work together to meet your family's learning needs.



Rare beauty. This emerald box comes from Iranian crown jewel collection. Through Britannica 3, you can learn about subjects such as "Gemstones" in detail.

Sacred setting of bygone civilization. A temple from pre-Columbian Mexico. Ancient cultures come to life in Britannica 3's many articles on religion and history.

For over two hundred years, the old idea of the encyclopaedia remained the same. But now, to meet the demands of our changing world with its vast amounts of information...now, there is Britannica 3. This is an all-new, completely redesigned encyclopaedia. It is written in clear, readable language... the language of today...so that even the most complex subjects become much easier for your entire family to understand.

What makes Britannica 3 unique?

New Britannica 3 is more than an encyclopaedia. It's a revolutionary new home learning center...America's only encyclopaedia arranged into three distinct parts.

1. The 10-Volume Ready Reference lets you get at facts, quickly and easily. Ideal for homework.

2. The 19-Volume Knowledge in Depth for readers who want to explore entire fields of learning.

3. The One-Volume Outline of Knowledge—your guide to the entire encyclopaedia...permits you to plan your own course of study on any subject under the sun.

Britannica 3 covers more subjects more completely. It is more responsive to today's needs of your family. And when you judge by its 43 million words, Britannica 3 delivers more value per dollar than any other accepted reference work. So if you want more up-to-date facts about more subjects than you'll find in any other single source, you want the new Britannica 3.

Preview Britannica FREE

New Britannica 3 is like no other encyclopaedia you have ever seen. Indeed, it's the first new idea in encyclopaedias in 200 years. That's why we've created a special full-color Preview Booklet which pictures and describes this achievement in detail. Send for this free booklet. We'll also give you details on how you can obtain Britannica 3 direct from the publisher.

Would you believe...? I fell in love with an Encyclopaedia.

Sound crazy? Maybe it is. But a short time ago, I had an opportunity to get a sneak preview of Britannica's brand-new encyclopaedia and believe me, it's nothing like the old one that my family cherished for years. In fact, this one is in three parts. If you or your children need to have at your fingertips a way to find out about anything at all, the new Britannica 3 may get to you, too. There's no better family encyclopaedia around.

CANARY ISLANDS...

THE CANARY ISLANDS DON'T GET THEIR NAME FROM THE WILD CANARY BIRDS. INSTEAD, THE NAME COMES FROM THE LATIN WORD "CANIS," MEANING "DOG," SO-CALLED BECAUSE OF THE MANY WILD DOGS ONCE FOUND ON THE ISLANDS.

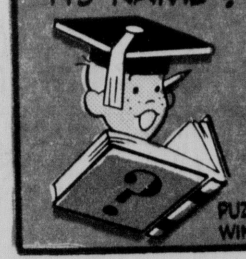
Q. THE CANARY ISLANDS ARE LOCATED NEAR....

1. BRAZIL
2. AFRICA
3. GERMANY

ANSWER: 2 AFRICA

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

JAMES ROSE OF GUELPH, CANADA, ASKS:
"HOW DID THE SANDWICH GET ITS NAME?"



THE SANDWICH WAS NAMED FOR THE EARL OF SANDWICH, AN ENGLISH NOBLEMAN OF THE EARLY 1700s. ACCORDING TO TRADITION, HE INVENTED THE SANDWICH WHILE PLAYING CARDS. RATHER THAN TO TAKE TIME AWAY FROM THE GAME TO EAT, HE ORDERED TWO SLICES OF BREAD WITH A PIECE OF ROAST MEAT BETWEEN THEM. THE SANDWICH QUICKLY BECAME POPULAR AS A FOOD BECAUSE IT WAS EASY TO PREPARE AND COULD BE EATEN WITHOUT THE USE OF FORKS AND KNIVES.

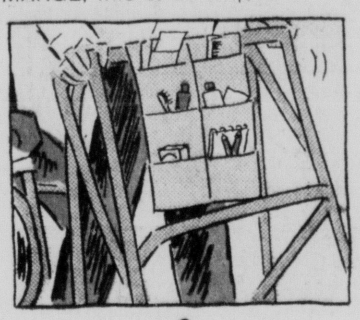
Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those who have to use walkers but want to feel as independent as possible. Have a shoe bag (divided into sections) fastened to the bar of the walker. Things that are constantly needed can be poked into the pockets and you do not have to call someone to get them for you. A nurse saw this in our home, and suggested that I sent it in. — MARGE, wife of an amputee.



•

DEAR POLLY — To keep corn-on-the-cob holders handy, I stick mine in a rectangle of styrofoam. A piece of cork could also be used. — LISA.

DEAR POLLY — When I buy a new container of liquid laundry detergent I tie a one-fourth-cup measure (amount required for this product) to the handle. I do not have to hunt around for the measuring cup and will always use the correct amount of the liquid. — PHYLLIS.

DEAR POLLY — When wearing sandals without hose, if they have metal buckles that might leave rust marks on your feet, cover the metal with clear nail polish. — MARY.

•

DEAR POLLY — An odd child's mitten, in a large size, with the thumb turned in, makes a great eyeglass case. — JANET.

DEAR POLLY — While embroidering, I use empty thread spools to wind my embroidery floss on so the thread does not tangle. It is much easier to manage. — CANDY.

DEAR POLLY — We keep a set of terry cloth towels in our car to use as lap cloths when eating while traveling. They are also placed on the dash to prevent sun glare. — IRENE.

DEAR POLLY — When lighting a water heater or gas furnace, use a candle instead of a match. — MRS. H.L.J.

•

DEAR POLLY — Always losing your typewriter eraser? If so, try this: Stick an ordinary adhesive-backed bandage on the side of your typewriter, insert a couple of pencil-shaped erasers. The bandage stays put and lasts a long time. — MADELENE.

DEAR POLLY — A neighbor and I who wear the same-size clothes take turns buying patterns. We copy the new pattern onto newspaper and cut it out. We each then have a pattern without having to bother the other one for it. — THERESA.
